HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 28.—Attorney General Cyrus E. Woods today tendered his resignation effective next Saturday to Governor John S. Fisher. The governor at once named Special Deputy Attorney General William A. Schnader as attorney general to succeed Woods.

Attorney General Woods said he was resigning for purely "personal reasons, and not because of any political considerations." The resignation ends, for the present at least,

House Of Lords De-

TAKES STEPS TO REMEDY CONDITION

(International News Service)
LONDON, Oct. 28.—Grave concern over unemployment in great Britain was expressed by King George today in his address at the opening of parliament in the House of Lords.

"I view with grave concern and sympathy the continuance of heavy unemployment among so many of my people," the King said. "Economic depression unfortunately continues to dominate the markets of the world. My government will persist in its efforts to develop and extend home and imperial foreign trade and help measures leading to greater efficiency in industry."

His majesty announced the government was immediately appointing a commission to inquire into alleged abuse of the unemployment dole. He announced that he would personally open the round table conference on India, and expressed the hope it would result in satisfactory settlement of outstanding Indian problems.

The King declared that a measure for electoral reform will be submitted to the House of Commons, as well as bills for amending the law relating to trade union disputes, raising the school age and ratification of the Washington hours convention.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Rains of the past few days will make ideal hunting weather and will eliminate the danger from field and forest fires. Only three more days and Brer Cottontail will be the object of pursuit all over the state.

During the week ending October 16, 37.7 miles of new paving were laid throughout the state, bringing the total for the season to 1170.38 miles. The past year has been one of the biggest road construction years in the history of the state and has provided thousands of men with employment, who would not have had work.

A quartet of raggedy boys walked down South Mercer street Monday evening in the heavy downpour of rain and they were singing several popular hits of the day just as loud as their lusty lungs could sound. "Singin' in the Rain," but it would have been effective.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS ARE MADE AT PLANT

Fazzoni Brothers Fireworks company, English avenue, pioneer fireworks manufacturing company in this district and the entire state, today received from the state department of labor and industry at Harrisburg, certificate No. 1, permitting the concern to go ahead with the manufacture, storage and handling of fireworks in the state of Pennsylvania.

The fact that the certificate numbered "one" indicates that the Fazzoni Brothers Fireworks company is the first in the entire state to meet the new requirements of the state relative to the manufacture of fireworks, since the order of some months ago, which temporarily at the time stopped the manufacture of fireworks throughout the state until the requirements of the state relative to housing conditions of the plants, also their location, had been approved.

Fazzoni Brothers Fireworks company at once started to comply with the new safety regulations of the state and at an expense of several thousand dollars has constructed two storage houses, one workshop and a boilerhouse in keeping with the state regulations. The company has also fenced in the large acreage (Continued On Page Two)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 28.—Half the world is fighting and the other half is out of a job, and would as soon be fighting as starving. For that's one thing in favor of war, they do feed you during one.

Then in the middle of all this, we start sinking our navy to save taxes. Saving taxes don't help the unemployed. They got nothing; are earning nothing; hence they pay nothing.

To reduce your navy in these times is exactly like a man who is not doing so well financially canceling all his life insurance, figuring it's a dead loss, because he hasn't died yet.

Police

ARNOLD RESIDENT WOUNDED IN CHEST

(International News Service)
NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Oct. 28.—One alleged bandit was shot and seriously wounded and his companion also was captured today when the two, charged with a series of daring holdups in the Allegheny valley in recent weeks, engaged in a gun battle with pursuing officers on the Russellton road near River Valley station, Harmarville township.

The men gave their names as George Hillbury, 33, of Superior, and Albert Kirk, 22, of Millertown. Hillbury received a bullet in the abdomen during the exchange of shots.

Man Shot Down

J. C. Akers, 24, of Arnold, who resisted the bandits during a holdup, was shot down and taken to the Citizens General hospital at New Kensington. Physicians said Akers' chest had been pierced by a bullet but that he probably would recover.

Capture of the two climaxed a spectacular chase that began near Cheswick last night after Hillbury and Kirk were reported to have driven away from a gasoline station conducted by Robert W. Poppleton on the Kittanning Pike, O'Hara township, without paying for gas and oil. When forced from the road by Poppleton and Francis B. Geyer, who pursued the bandits in Geyer's car, the men leaped from their machine, covered Poppleton and Geyer with pistols, and relieved their pursuers of $3 in cash, commanding Geyer's machine in place of their wrecked car.

George Meyers, 22, of Parnassus, was the next victim. Near Camp Jean on the Greensburg road, Meyers was held up and robbed of $22. The fleeing men's trail was traced to Allegheny county when they held (Continued On Page Two)

MILITARY REGIME ISSUES WARNING

(International News Service)
RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 28.—Determined to forestall any further outbreaks of counter-revolutionary violence, the military junta governing Brazil pending the arrival of Provisional President Getulio Vargas today threatened "ferocious treatment" to any malcontents who choose to "behave like wild animals."

Driven to the necessity of a new show of strength early in its career, the new government was held to have demonstrated its popularity with the great mass of the people when an incipient counter-insurrection was put down with approximately 100 casualties yesterday.

Government troops called out to combat the revolt were aided by thousands of citizens, who voluntarily took up arms against the counter-revolutionists.

Reports as to the actual number of casualties differed, and the toll of dead ranged from four to 35. Intense excitement reigning throughout the city during the two hours the revolt was in progress made an authentic check-up impossible.

(International News Service)

McALESTER, Okla., Oct. 28.—All hope for the rescue of twenty nine miners entombed by an explosion in the lower levels of the Wheatley No. 4 coal mine of the Samples Coal Company was virtually abandoned at 8:30 a. m. today when the rescuers encountered black damp at the fifteenth level of the mine.

The men are entombed in the 15th, 17th and 18th levels, 3,600 feet from the mouth of the mine.

Trapped By Explosion
The miners comprising part of the shift which went to work at 7 p. m. yesterday were trapped by an explosion which wrecked the mine late last night.

Debris piled about the entrance to the mine delayed the rescuers for more than four hours. They entered the mine early today and working frantically had penetrated to within a hundred feet of the entombed men when they encountered the dreaded black damp on the 15th level of the mine.

The gas forced the rescuers back to the tenth level where they were forced to mark time while a fanning apparatus was installed to clear the mine of the deadly fumes.

It is not known when they will be able to again penetrate the lower recesses of the mine.

Crowds of curious and relatives of the trapped miners surged about the mouth of the mine, adding difficulty to efforts to maintain order. A group of American Legion members, who were among the first to arrive at the scene following the blast, took immediate charge in controlling the crowds.

Volunteers Aid
The entire forces of a rescue station maintained here for such emergencies, and volunteer workers have been enlisted to aid in the rescue of the entombed miners.

When the skies are drab and dreary, and each task seems hard and weary, and you feel as though the winter will be more than you can bear, when the sun is somewhere hiding and a storm comes up a riding and you feel as though your shoulders will not hold your weight of care, just remember there are places, somewhere in the open spaces, where the sun is always shining and it's summer all the while, and the folks wear flimsy dresses, to resist the sun's caresses, and bathing suit considered to be just the height of style. Where it is, this island sunny, costs a heap of hard earned money it you'd travel to its shores to where the sea is always blue, but on days like this I'd like to drop my work and start to hike to where they revel in the sunshine, weather's cool and satisfactory.

Hemphill Ready To End Campaign In Western Penna.

Hemphill Party Will Move Eastward To Tour Coal Regions

BITTER CAMPAIGN IS ALMOST OVER

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—John M. Hemphill, candidate for governor on the Democratic and 1931 party tickets, will complete his campaign in Western Pennsylvania today with talks at Altoona and Pittsburgh and a final address at a Democratic rally here tonight.

Accompanied by Sedgwick Kiser, candidate for United States senator on the Democratic ticket; Guy Bard, candidate for lieutenant governor; Mrs. Lucy D. Winston, party nominee for secretary of internal affairs and former Judge A. E. Reiber and George F. Douglas, candidate for superior court, Hemphill was to speak in Altoona at noon and over the radio in Pittsburgh at 7:15 p. m., before attending the rally.

Tour Coal Regions
The remainder of the week will see the Democratic caravan touring the coal regions of the state, winding up the most bitter political battle in Pennsylvania's history.

"Pinchot, if elected, can stop the return of light wines and beer until 1935, even if the next congress repeals or modifies the Volstead act," declared Assistant County Solicitor J. B. McGinnis at a Democratic rally yesterday.

"It is now thoroughly understood that the Wickersham commission will report after the election that prohibition cannot be enforced," McGinnis continued, "and the commission no doubt will recommend changes. A repeal of the Volstead law. It is a foregone conclusion that President Hoover will make a similar recommendation to congress."

But before Pennsylvania can benefit by the changes that the next congress may make in the prohibition act, it may be compelled to change or repeal the Armstrong-Reider act.

"If Pinchot is elected and vetoes such changes, he can prevent any action in 1931 or 1933."

You're the JUDGE

Jones and Hicks were partners. Business hadn't been going so well lately and some loans had been made. So Jones and Hicks both went around together and individually, and tried to raise some money. In the end each had executed several notes to several persons to which each affixed his signature. Presently one of the holders of one of the notes signed by Jones felt the need of some money himself, so he called on the partners, and met Mr. Hicks and surrendered the note for payment of part of the loan. But after a time he decided that had let that note go away too cheaply and felt that he was entitled to its full face value. He, therefore, went back to Hicks and wanted to undo the transaction. But Hicks said no. So he filed suit.

How would you decide this case? Make up your mind before you read the decision.

Attorney General Woods was born in Clearfield in September, 1861. During recent years he has maintained homes both in Greensburg and Philadelphia.

Schnader is 44 years of age, one of the youngest attorney generals in the state's history. He was born in Bowmanville, Lancaster county. At the present time his father, the Rev. Dr. C. B. Schnader, is pastor of the Lutheran church at Shamokin.

The new attorney general is married and lives in Philadelphia. He has never been active in politics.

clowns had better try to be in by midnight!

(You won't forget that Friday and Saturday are Fruit and Vegetable Donation Days for the Jameson hospital, will you?)

Wouldn't be such a bad idea to give the downtown streets a flushing now.

Last Sunday, the 26th, marked the 26th anniversary of the founding of the Highland United Presbyterian church, corner of Highland and Park avenues. A year ago the congregation celebrated the passing of the quarter-century mark.

This speeding recklessly through some of the city's traffic lights should stop. Out on the north hill several drivers totally ignore the signal, endangering cars approaching from the side.

Plenty of interest along East Washington street yesterday for pedestrians, with Carl Becker and his men at work on the pinnacle of the First Christian church spire and two painters doing their stuff on scaffolding high up on the First National bank building. Scores watched them.

Did you know that John Stevenson, at one time a prominent manufacturer of New Castle, was the first man to patent the process of putting a head on a nail? That is what Pa New is told.

Clowns, witches, ghosts and fantastic looking dancers may be seen scooting along in the streets these nights, hurrying along to gay Halloween parties. Halloween is just a couple days away and it is the season of parties. Seems to be plenty of them this year.

Thanksgiving Day will arrive on the dot one month from yesterday.

Spectators to the Halloween parades in this city on Thursday and Friday evenings should remain on the sidewalk. Crowding into the street and giving the mummies but a narrow line to file through spoils the effect of the parade. In the Washington street and Long avenue areas at least, the crowd should be kept on the sidewalks.

Automobilists should not use the downtown thoroughfares as a garage for cars after midnight to night as the city engineer will be in operation, beginning at midnight. According to an ordinance parking is prohibited and automobiles are ordered by police to be hauled to garages. They can be secured only after the owner has paid storage charges.

It was stated to one of Pa New's family that Woods & Golder will not pour concrete today in North street. The contractor is constructing a storm sewer at Butler avenue and Washington street. The mixer will be kept there until a "fast setting" cement is laid. After this is completed the concrete base will be poured in North street.

Traffic in East Washington street, east, is being diverted owing to the storm sewer construction at Butler avenue, according to the department of city engineers. They stated today that a detour runs from East Washington to Allen street through Superior and DuShane streets. The contractor hopes to open the street as soon as possible.

Walter H. Wolford Dies In Hospital

Had Skull Fractured August 27 In Fall From Lincoln-Garfield School

After holding his own for two months, Walter H. Wolford, aged 59, 913 Maryland avenue, finally succumbed to an injury which he received in a fall on August 27 at the Lincoln-Garfield school.

Mr. Wolford has been employed as caretaker for the Garfield school for the past eight years and during the summer months was cleaning the school, making it ready for the opening and was on a ladder doing some outside cleaning, when he slipped and fell. He was taken to the New Castle hospital, where it was found he had suffered a fracture of the skull. He had improved gradually and a couple of weeks ago was able to go to his home, but he suffered a relapse and was again returned to the hospital, where he died at 4 a. m. today.

Mr. Wolford was born November 8, 1871, the son of George and Lucinda Morrow Wolford, and has spent the greater part of his life in New Castle, having been employed for 27 years in the Shenango Tin Mills and the past eight years at the Lincoln-Garfield school. He was a member of the Third United Presbyterian church and of the Men's Bible class.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna Wolford, two sons, Herman and Wilbur, of this city; two brothers, Clarence of Jamestown and Robert of Venango, and two sisters, Mrs. Jane Jewell, of Oil City and Mrs. Ruth Reese of Jimtown.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2:30 p. m. from the residence with Rev. S. B. Copeland officiating. Interment will be made in Oak Park cemetery.

miner, was found a short distance inside the mine. He was killed by the force of the explosion.

The Wednesday 4 a. m. slope mine extending between 3,900 and 4,000 feet from the mouth of the mine. It is located in North McAlester on the state penitentiary farm a short distance from the prison.

Working in relays of 40 to 50 men the rescue crews are groping their way in the gas filled catacombs endeavoring to place a suction fan into operation to blow out the deadly black damp fumes.

So intense is the odor of the fumes that a relay of rescuers can stay in the mine but a short time being relieved by a fresh crew periodically.

Gas is intense.

Two of the rescue workers have been overcome by the deadly gas. They were removed from the mine and treated by first aid respiration methods.

The intensity of the gas is indicated by the apparent condition of a rescue crew as it emerges from the mine to be replaced by a fresh crew.

The men appear to be in a stupor and gasp hungrily at the cool fresh air.

Efforts to advance far enough into the mine to ascertain if any of the miners still are alive have been refused by the deadly gas which forced the rescuers to retreat.

First estimates were that the imprisoned men would be reached by noon. Now it is not believed possible to reach the level of the mine by the 16th level of the mine by the 16th level of the mine today, probably by nightfall.

Assisting in the rescue work is Miller Hay, chief mine inspector. He came here from Ada at first word of the blast.

Last night's explosion was the second within a year in the McAlester mines district. On December 17, 1929, 62 miners lost their lives when a blast roared in the Old Town mine at a depth of 3,500 feet. But three miners were removed alive.

The last of the bodies was removed Christmas day as the entire state joined in raising a fund to alleviate the burden of the grief-stricken widows and children of the dead miners.

STAR LORE
PROBABLY THE GRANDEST DISPLAY ON THE PLANET

By Arthur De V. Carpenter

It would be interesting to know whether any other planet in the solar system has so magnificent a geological display upon its surface as has our's with its Grand Canyon of the Colorado. The moon probably has. Grand Canyon, however, is 214 miles long, from eight to 12 miles wide, a little more than a mile deep and has probably been 50,000-100,000 years in developing, while Colorado river has 2,000 more feet of rock to cut through before it gets down to sea level. The Grand Canyon area was once under the ocean, for fossil marine deposits are found embedded in its rocks. Afterward the entire area began to rise. The earth's crust is constantly warping.

HIGHWAY NEEDS WIDENING AND REPAVING

WHILE there are other highways that are in need of improvement in Lawrence county, we believe that one of the worst needs on a much travelled highway is in Union township, just outside the city limits.

On route 422, the New Castle to New Bedford highway, which is one of the heaviest travelled in this section of the country, there is a strip of about a mile of the old macadam paving just outside the city, that is not in keeping with the improved highways of this district. While in its day it was a fine piece of road, and it is well maintained today for the kind of roadway that it is, it appears to us that it is far too narrow. If it is not entirely repaved, the present macadam paving should be extended on either side to make a wider thoroughfare.

We know of no mile stretch of improved road anywhere in Lawrence county that appeals to us as such a traffic hazard for an important highway.

The widening procedure should not be long delayed.

OUR HALLOWE'EN CELEBRATIONS

NEW CASTLE will have two big Halloween celebrations this week. On Thursday night there will be the South Side carnival on Long avenue, and on Friday night the uptown mummer's parade.

We have seen many of these processions in this city, and we have as yet to see one in which the spectators remained on the sidewalks and allowed the paraders to have the street to do their stuff.

It would aid a hundred per cent in the success of these parades if the spectators were kept on the sidewalks.

Why not?

CONTROL SALE OF FIREARMS

When the report of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission is made it will be surprising if there is not a recommendation in it urging both federal and state restrictions on the sale and manufacture of firearms. Those who have been trying to find a solution of the crime problem fully realize that the promiscuous sale of deadly weapons has helped to make things easier for the crooks, the thugs and the bandits.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney, in his first public address in New York the other day, insisted that the ease with which firearms could be bought was a source of much evil in that community. He said one firm in that city had sold 785 machine-guns in the last year. Were they used for legitimate purposes or were they utilized by gangsters? The police attempted a check-up on the names of the purchasers and found they were chiefly fictitious.

Commissioner Mulrooney said the police recently seized thirty machine-guns in a mid-western city and upon investigation found that every one of them had been bought in New York. During the recent Tong war one group of Chinese purchased 300 revolvers in a neighboring state. "If," declared the commissioner, "these guns were to be shipped to some foreign country to aid in insurrection, I suppose our federal government would have taken action to prevent their shipment. But they were for use in our own country, possibly against our own citizens, so nothing was done."

It must be conceded that the problem is a difficult one. There are classes of citizens and officials who are entitled to possess firearms. The police require them, and so do watchmen and the guards of banking houses. It would be folly to disarm law-abiding citizens while permitting bandits to go about like walking arsenals. Again, hunters have a right to their guns and rifles. There are other exceptions, including house-holders. But an attempt should be made to restrict the use of firearms to legitimate purposes. That is one way of going after the profession criminal and organized crime. Until that is done it is a waste of time to mourn over the boldness of the racketeers.

LONDON'S 80 FEET

From October 1 on, no doubt to some millennium, buildings in London may go 80 feet, no farther, towards the sky. Though this new law excludes two stories in the roof and spires, turrets, and other incidents that may aspire higher, 80 feet will be the rule, and London will hereafter be miles long, miles broad, and 80 feet in thickness.

America builds thicker cities, layer on layer towards the hundreds, but London and the continent, where twenty stories soon to be in Antwerp will tower over all the plain, like their sandwich thin. There are good reasons, and if Europe prefers low buildings and distributed metropolises, such styles are theirs to choose. But there are bad reasons, too, for example, that of Mr. Maurice E. Webb, quoted solemnly in the Times of London. A large skyscraper in New York, says Mr. Webb, houses some 10,000 people, equivalent to a town the size of Maidstone. In fire or a panic, even though each person could get out at once, the street below, he says, could not hold them. And so it goes. On the assumption evidently that a London skyscraper must be of old and hallowed nonfireproof construction, the English want no skyscrapers. They want new styles in the old fashioned way, or not at all. Good reasons there are for keeping a low skyline, but such terrifying fantasies hardly are convincing.—The Chicago Tribune.

All of US

By Marshall Maslin

"DON'T YOU LOVE ME ANY MORE?"

"There's a guaranteed, tried-and-tested recipe for killing love. It isn't a secret, millions of men and women know it and use it and can testify sadly to its success.

It's merely a question, a sentence of six words. You look sad, or you look sulky, or you whine, or you let a tear roll down your cheek, and you mean 'Don't you love me any more?'

Say those six words and you put Love to death. You do it as completely as Othello suffocated Desdemona with a pillow. You drive it away. You bore it to death. You don't give it a chance. You change Love to Pity or to Contempt. Or you put it in chains and it never quite gets free again.

Just six words can do that. Just those six words:

"Don't you love me any more?" That makes you a beggar, whining, piteous mendicant of Love. It shows you are desperate and afraid and timid and that you believe love can be claimed as a Right, as a Debt.

Well, it can't. You say, "Don't you love me any more?" and the man or woman who hears your pathetic cry turns cold with aversion and shrinks from your appeal.

The woman feels contempt for you—you are not manly, you are not strong, you are not lovable then.

The man despises you—you are too weak for him, you have no charm at that moment, you are a clammy, clinging vine and he wishes you'd take your arms from about his neck.

In the moment that you say those words, you are destroying the mystery of love. Your friend may reply, impatiently, "Of course, I love you!" But you do not believe, you know it isn't true. Love never uses that desperate, distant tone. Love speaks with a glance, with a touch of the hand, and needs no trumpeting interpreter to announce his presence.

And if he goes, you may bring him back—but not with that beggar's cry of defeat:

"Don't you love me any more?"

Just Folks

UNCHANGEABLE

Oh, times may change and customs new arise when we are gone,
But in ten thousand years from now
Some things will still go on.

So long as money pays the bills,
There will be law suits over wills
And relatives who see a chance to get a little more;

So long as gold and silver pave
A smoother pathway to the grave
There will be men to steal and cheat
The way they've done before.

Electric wires and ships in air
And speech that conquers space
May alter a man's environment,
But not the human race.

In years long after we are dead
Man still will stop and turn his head
And stare at every pretty girl whom he may chance to meet,
And some will love and some will hate.

Some foolishly will dissipate,
And some will still attempt to gain advantage by deceit.

Ten thousand years from now or more
More ill-tempered men will swear,
The cowardly will shirk the fight,
While brave men do and dare.

As men have done in ages past
They'll rock the boat or drive too fast
Or find some other foolish way
In tragedy to die.

Whatever changes time may bring
In happy hours they'll laugh and sing,
And weep in sorrow, groan in pain—
the same as you and I.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

BOYS AND RULES

Papers catering to the garment trades and dress making industries were written with an eagle eye the styles and manners displayed at all gathering places of the rich and fashionable. They even have their spies in the colleges so that the latest whims of the campus Beau Brummels may be speedily transmitted into new and alluring garments.

Recently in one of the smaller colleges a dispute arose between the Dean and the students as to the etiquette of wearing coats. The students were in favor of appearing in public in shirt sleeves. The Dean held out for coats. Enforcement of the Dean's commands brought out a flock of antiquated frock coats, cutaways and swallow tails, duly and solemnly described in the trade papers as the latest campus news.

College boys may seem very foolish at times, but it is a smart Dean who knows when to say "No" to any bunch of students.

British Tariff Uncertainty Impressive To This Country

Fate Of Parties And Relations Between Home Country And Dominions Believed To Be Tied Up With Adoption Of Commercial Policies

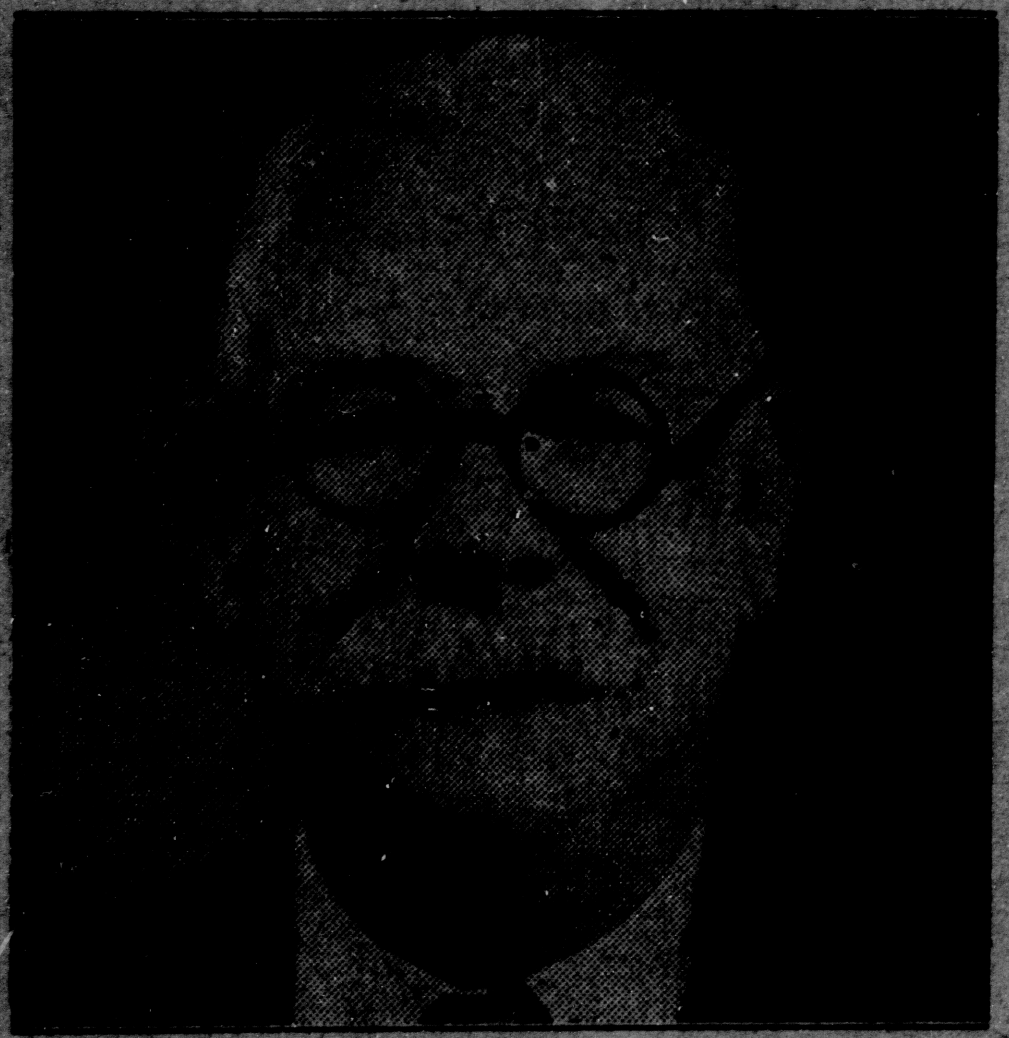

Protection and free trade, debated at the British empire conference, appear in American comment to mark a cross-roads in English commercial history. The spirited controversy is believed to indicate that the future policy may be definitely linked with the fate of parties and with the relations between the British Isles and the several dominions. A compromise, in the nature of a plan similar to that of the farm board in this country, is considered as a factor.

Observing that the people of that country "have been dreaming hazily of abandoning their historic policy of free trade and promoting an empire customs union, a plan hitherto referred to as empire free trade," the DES MOINES REGISTER voices the view that the plan "has not had undivided support from any one of the three parties," and offers the conclusion that the uncertainties involved: "Some believe that the refusal of the Labor party to approve a tax on food will lead to the downfall of the MacDonald cabinet, but this is unlikely since the Conservative party is itself divided on this problem and since most of the conservative leaders know that there is no quick cure-all for England's economic malady and would just as soon let someone else do the doctoring at present. They know that the British empire—and practically the whole world, for that matter—is suffering from agricultural and industrial over-production, and that until this over-production is curbed there will still be poor trade and much unemployment."

A factor which is emphasized by the ELMIRA STAR-GAZETTE is the "Soviet Russia is taking advantage of the British policy of free trade to dump heavy supplies of products into the English market at prices which, it is admitted, are below the possibility of competition on the part of British Isles farmers," while the KALAMAZOO GAZETTE, which is considered by the government's spokesmen, "The fear that if the empire were to raise its tariffs far above their present average level and allow systematic concessions among its own units, non-British nations would be quick to reply in kind. It is their contention that the economic gains thus effected within the empire would be more than offset by the loss of world markets. For the most part the Conservative elements in Great Britain do not subscribe to this view, but lean strongly toward the 'preferential' program."

Emphasis upon the desired unity is placed by the HAMILTON ONTARIO SPECTATOR, which holds that "the effort to discover a workable basis for cooperation for the benefit of the empire as a whole and all its separate parts is proof of the strength of the imperial tie." The SPECTATOR concludes: "If the desired result cannot be secured by the adoption of any particular plan of economic unity, other and more effective plans would be tried. The determination of the British people to make the most of their heritage will find the right path to the fulfillment of their great vision: it is to be discovered by free discussion, by submission of all the viewpoints, and a

DR. G. W. BLANEY KNOWS THE HEALTH VALUE OF TONOMEL--READ WHAT HE SAYS:

Dr. G. W. Blaney, 5806 Merville Ave., Baltimore, Md.

I have seen the remarkable action of Tonomel in correcting various stomach conditions, and I know that sufferers will find health in Tonomel. Besides prescribing this wonder medicine to many of my patients—I have also taken Tonomel myself.

Many acute cases of constipation are due to inactive liver. This organ, one of the most important in the body, must be kept normally active and clean. A sluggish liver promptly displays symptoms—some of them are large, unrightly liver-spots, coated tongue, yellowed eyeballs, dizzy spells and blinding headaches. (The least sign should be regarded as a warning and treated immediately.)

Tonomel, because of its unparalleled tonic quality, soon brings the torpid liver back into its natural, active state. Plenty of exercise and wise diet help along the good work.

If the liver becomes deranged and refuses to function normally, the digestive system also gets out of order. The bile which the liver secretes is absolutely necessary to healthy digestion, and if this fluid is not provided, stomach trouble and constipation result. It is very unwise to allow a troubled condition of the liver to exist. Many serious results are induced by carelessness in this respect, and we cannot urge too strongly the immediate treatment of this ailment.

Life Has Been Full Of Mergers For M. S. Kincaid

Now He's Back At Home
Again With His Old
Love, The Burton
Company

SALES MANAGER HAS HAD COLORFUL CAREER

"Merge, Submerge, And Emerge," Might Be
Title Of His Life
Story

MIFFLIN S. KINCAID

"Business Buddies for a Third of a Century," or "Merge, Submerge, and Emerge," might well be the title of the story of "Miff" Kincaid if Horatio Alger were writing it. Miff S. Kincaid has probably been "merged" more often than any man in New Castle. Horatio would find his plot tied in a pretzel bow if he tried to make it as intricate as the real record of the life of that canny Scot, Kincaid.

You would spot him as a Scotchman if you didn't know his name nor couldn't see the emblem of the Scottish Rite pendant on his chain. He has that conservative manner, that innate caution, that frugal, thrifty habit of life which separates the Highlander from his near neighbor, the impetuous, venturesome, prodigious Irishman by a gulf wider than the Irish Sea itself.

Miff knows a good thing when he sees it, and sticks to it. The same with men. Miff sticks to good men for a lifetime. Once a friend, always a friend—that's why Miff and Joe Burton and dynamite have been business buddies for a third of a century.

The record reads like this, as the old timer would say: "Back in '98 there was a powder mill owned by Kirk & Son of Pittsburgh. That was the year young Joe Burton and young Miff Kincaid went looking for jobs, and met at the office of Kirk & Son.

First Merger
But this is the story of Kincaid, so we leave Joe Burton to learn the manufacturing end of the business, while we start Miff on the travel-some road he has followed, selling powder. Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana, he covered—and that means covered!

No automobiles, few trains, few interurbans, but strong young legs and good wind it took to cover the territory. Then came a merger of Kirk & Son with du Pont. Submerged!

Miff emerged with friends, a farm, and an idea. His friends were Joe and Joe Burton; the farm was at Quaker Falls; and the idea was to build a black powder mill on the farm. He helped in the construction of the plant—The Burton Powder plant—and when it was finished, went out to peddle the powder over his old territory.

Build Plant Here
It was in 1908 that Kincaid's horizon was broadened. The year previous had been the panic of 1907, and in that bad time for business these same courageous musicians had organized the American High Explosive Company at Covert's Station.

The money to buy and build the new plant was profit from the powder plant—and the new mill meant a new product, dynamite.

Dynamite meant a wider field, and Miff was picked as the pioneer to "go out, and open up the west."

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membrane, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a household medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 5 times the cost. From any drugstore, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the granular phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active secret of cross-grained, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

With headquarters in Chicago, he directed operations in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, and Michigan, and what a field!

1917. Another merger. In went Burton Powder and American High Explosive, and out came Grasselli Powder Company, with Joe Burton President, and Miff in charge of more new territory—the great Southwest—Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Texas—still a country of cattle, rangers, Indians, and fellows who could roo like Will Rogers and shoot like Wild Bill Hickock.

Still More Mergers
Miff Kincaid, sitting at Joe's in Missouri, when he sat at all, plumb in the center of the zinc and lead district, saw his territory become the largest consuming area of explosives in the world.

And there he was when along came another merger. Grasselli was no more. Du Pont, for whom Miff and Joe had worked thirty years before, had 'em again! That was too much—the last straw—the finishing touch. Joe Burton retired and Miff Kincaid jumped to The Illinois Powder Company in 1928.

A wider field, from the Mississippi to New York, was plenty wide. Miff had seen it all. He had been salesman, service man, district manager, and special representative, which means a free lance to come and go when and where he pleased.

Came Back Home
It was time to come home. He had located the site for the Seneca plant for Grasselli, seen everything, done everything, and wanted to come home.

So he did as a Scotchman would do when his mind was made up. He packed up and hiked for home—New Castle, bag and baggage, family and auto—bought a home at 221 Leasure avenue, and here he is.

Now, when Miff wakes up in the morning, he finds himself in the old town. He's with Burton Explosives again. The plant is out at Covert's where it was before. Joe Burton, the old business buddy he hooked up with some thirty-two years ago, is boss of the works.

And Miff S. Kincaid feels that he has "emerged" from the nightmare of mergers in his life for the last time.

Birth Rate In Pennsylvania Is Best In Nation

Statistics Show That Infant
Mortality Rate In State
Is Also Highest

By ARTHUR G. WILSON

Special Washington Correspondent Of The New Castle News

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28.—Babies are born at a faster rate in Pennsylvania than in the country as a whole, but also die at a greater frequency, figures just made public by the division of vital statistics of the census bureau reveal.

The birth rate in the Keystone state in 1929 was 19.8 per 1,000 of the population, as against 18.9 for the nation at large, whereas the infant mortality rate for the state last year was 71 per 1,000 live births as against 68 for the United States taken as a unit.

However, the state's birth rate last year was lower than the 20.4 rate for 1928. The infant death rate in 1929 was also lower than the rate of 72 child deaths under one year per 1,000 live births reported during the previous year.

The slight fall in the death rate among Pennsylvania babies last year was in keeping with the decided drop seen in the state's infant mortality curve when viewed over the period of the last 15 years.

In 1915, the infant mortality rate was 110 and in 1918 it went to 129 but since then has shown a decided though slight drop. The rate of 69 in 1927 was the lowest reached by the infant mortality curve in Pennsylvania during the 15-year period covered by the survey.

Here is the complete statement as authorized by

JAMES A. FARLEY

President, General Builders Supply Corp.; Chairman, New York State Athletic Commission; Chairman, New York State Democratic Committee

"I am certain that without the use of modern, scientific methods the skyscrapers for which our country is so justly proud would never have been possible. I am equally convinced that your modern use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the Toasting of your LUCKY STRIKE Tobacco ranks with the many other great contributions to the health and comfort of millions and that it is responsible for the skyscraping sales of your famous brand."

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating!

Crawford White Recalls Shenango Street District In Days Before Civil War

A recent article appearing in the News concerning the early history of the old R. M. Allen homestead at the corner of Shenango and West North streets, recalled to J. Crawford White of Euclid avenue, some things of the past that he has observed during his long residence here, or learned from others long since dead.

Mr. White writes: "While Mr. Allen lived that was the show place of North street, but before the Civil war that corner was occupied by a large log building falling into decay.

"The horn of the early morning packet coming down the Shenango river a few rods west of that corner was quite appealing at that time, our railroad station at that time being at Enon Valley. Then you mention that great spring of water north of the residence of John Phillips, deceased. That tract of land on which the spring is located was made over by the government to an old Revolutionary soldier by the name of Craig, by a sheepskin. It included the land within the following bounds: The south line was the old government donation line just south of Grant street, the north line Neshaunock township, the east line just east of Mercer street, and the west line the Shenango river.

"An old timer declared that Lower Neshaunock, now called the First Presbyterian church, erected a large tent a short distance below that spring and later a large log building for a heating plant two large sugar kettles filled with charcoal were used, so in winter they had a certain degree of warmth, and winter from a never freezing, never falling spring.

In 1866 the title to the tract of land above mentioned descended to

Peter's Adventures

THE RED ANTS ARE COMING! "Help, Help, Help!" shrieked a terror-stricken voice, that made Bruce's antennae quiver and the hair stand straight up on Peter's head. The enemy is coming! They have overtaken me. Ouch! Ouch! They are pulling off my legs. They are twisting my head. Ooooh!

The shriek died away in a piteous moan. For an instant there was silence in the tunnels. "Something horrible must have happened," whispered Peter, whose tongue clung to the roof of his mouth.

"It has," murmured Busy. "But the worst is yet to come. That cry meant one of our sentinels has been surprised on duty and tortured to death. Poor sentinel! Her cry for help has stopped all labor in Ant-Hill. Before you can draw your breath my sisters will gather to prepare for defense against the enemy advancing upon us."

"Do you suppose the Red Ants are coming?" asked Peter, fearfully, with all his might, wishing he were up and above ground. The boy's question was answered without Busy saying a word.

"On guard! Every Ant to her post!" the stern command came in a voice Peter at once recognized as belonging to Soldier Ant. "The Red Ants are coming! They are almost upon us. You know what it will be if we are taken. Fight, sisters! Fight for your liberty or you will spend the rest of your lives as slaves. And well you know the cruel masters you will have to serve. Protect our babies! Give your lives for your Queens if you have to! Defend your homes and fight to the last ditch!"

"We will fight, oh Great Commander!" cried the Ants in mighty chorus. "We will defend our home and our noble Queens!"

Next: "Plans of the Defense."

THE PARENT PROBLEM

Girl's Dad Her Ideal, She Writes

Youngsters' Letters Welcomed By Dr. Myers

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

The following letter from a little girl, Edith, who says she is 8 years old and in the fourth grade, I prize as highly as any I have received from my readers:

"My dear Dr. Myers: I am writing of my own dear dad, as the most ideal father in the world, I believe. He is all that a child would want for a father. He is always thinking of us and the things we like. He brings us fruit and vegetables, which he says make little bodies strong. He is so peaceful, happy and loving, even when he is over-tired. Mother says she wishes she had another hundred years to live with him. I wish I had more space to write more about him."

I should like to run in this column more letters from children on the qualities they admire in their father or mother.

A Massachusetts mother writes:

"My dear Dr. Myers: The following account of my ward's first experience with death will interest you. 'First impressions are so lasting that I wanted his regards death, to have no unpleasant thought.'

"His foster father had been in poor health for some years, and died in the night. The boy (4 years 10 months) came in to my bed in the morning. I said: 'Bruce, papa is dead.' He replied, 'Now isn't that too bad. I guess mama cried, and Aunt Lizzie cried. He was good to me and brought me animal crackers from the store. He was good to you, too. He brought you a paper when you didn't go into town. Where did he go?'

"I told him he went to heaven. 'How did he get there?'

"So I explained that his body stayed with us, but his spirit was light, like a feather, and went up. (I am not vouching for approving, nor condemning this theology. I am interested in the effect the answer had on the child.) This satisfied him completely, and when some weeks later he went to the cemetery with mama, he was very happy over it, 'he went to see papa,' and it seemed to give him as much pleasure as if he really saw him."

"The day papa died Bruce wanted to see him. I told him he could see him, but the men would come and put papa's clothes on, and his body would be taken to, and put in the ground, and we would plant flowers over him."

"When he went to see him in the casket, 'I said: 'You see it is as I told you. He looks as if he were asleep.' 'Yes, he looks asleep, but he's dead,' he replied."

Writing from Berkeley, Cal., a mother tells about one of four boys, "and I read fairy tales to all of them, but I never saw anyone who could read in them as my youngest son, who is now 19. He could fairly live in a land of make-believe, but then he would step right out of it into reality."

Then after citing a number of samples of his early flights of fancy, she added: "He never confused truth with fiction, and has always been extremely active. . . . This boy entered college last January and is taking engineering. He has always been interested in science. . . . He is far from being a dreamer, in spite of the fairy tales he absorbed." Her description almost fits my own boy, who entered college this September.

If there is no hell, what becomes of the old boy who tries to dodge it by leaving $50,000 to charity and $5000 to his widow?

Keep Homes Too Hot!

"It has been but recently that nearly everyone was complaining about the torrid weather, and with good reason. With the driest and hottest summer and warmest early autumn experienced for many years, a health basis rather than the comparatively poor protection to lower temperature afforded by the present styles in feminine attire, is considered. However, be that as it may, no one should be guilty of overlooking 'the well established fact that 68 to 72 degrees is the health range for artificial heat. Anything warmer is likely to injure health and may even terminate life."

"Therefore, keep the home fires burning, but keep them burning on a health basis rather than the summer heat standard of the recent unlamented season."

G. A. R. Committee Completes Duties And Is Disbanded

Completes Payment Of All Bills And Disposes Of Balance On Hand

COMMITTEE HEADS
GIVEN VOTE OF THANKS

Members of the recent G. A. R. encampment committee met Monday evening in the News office at the call of the chairman, the Hon. Fred L. Rentz, audited and checked accounts of receipts and expenditures, authorized the payment of final expenditures placed before it, disposed of a balance on hand amounting to $145.50 and ceased to function.

The reports received and approved showed that it was one of the most successful community efforts ever held in the city and that the funds had been handled carefully and accurately.

Reports of R. L. Meermans, chairman of the financial committee, and D. D. Valensi, financial secretary, were received and checked and found to be in perfect accord and were approved by the committee.

The pledges received amounted to $6,201.35. The actual amount paid in amounted to $4,961.35, leaving a balance of $1,240 which was not collected or paid in. The pledges made and not paid in to the committee by those making them were eight or 10 in number.

The expenditures reported paid up until the meeting last night amounted to $4,746.32. Readjustments brought the balance of cash on hand to $295.50.

Expenditures made by the Ladies of the G. A. R. and Woman's Relief Corps in the entertainment of the Civil War Veterans and still unpaid to the amount of $150 were approved and ordered paid, leaving a balance after all expenditures of $145.50.

This committee decided should be used in furthering service men's affairs and the balance was divided into two equal parts, $72.50 being paid over to the Armistice Day celebration committee for its use and $72.50 ordered placed in an interest bearing certificate of deposit by D. D. Valensi, financial secretary, and held by him until such time as it had been definitely determined as to whether or not the state encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars is to be held here in 1931.

If this encampment is held here this fund with accumulated interest, is to be turned over to the fund raised for that purpose. If not used for that purpose it will later be designated for some other service men's affair to be held in this city.

Before ceasing to function the committee unanimously approved a vote of thanks to General Chairman Fred L. Rentz, Finance Chairman R. L. Meermans, Financial Secretary D. D. Valensi and Treasurer George R. Ralph for the services rendered.

Suspended Brokers Face Warrants For Illegal Conversion

Reading Attorney And Wife
File Warrants Against C.
Clothier Jones And Co.

(International News Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—Suspension of the brokerage firm of C. Clothier Jones and Company of this city from the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges and the Philadelphia Exchange and the institution of bankruptcy proceedings in the U. S. District Court here were followed today by the revelation that warrants had been issued for members of the firm on complaint of a Reading attorney and his wife.

The Reading complainants, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hoffman traded with the Jones concern. They swore out warrants for C. Clothier Jones, R. Heber Bailey, John Bell Hahn, Richard Norris Williams, Third Nelson H. Gildersleeve and Paul Tappan, charging that $400 was unlawfully converted by the officials and their employees.

Receivers for the defunct firm were appointed late yesterday by Judge William H. Kirkpatrick. They are J. C. Neff and Frank M. Hardt, vice presidents of the Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Company to whom the firm made an assignment.

A Reading detective was expected to serve the warrants today.

First Draw "Skeleton," Then Fill In Details

This is good practice—try it.

(This is another lesson in the national cartoon contest of Central Press.)

By E. E. (VERD) VERDIER
Creator of "Swiftly"

Proportion is everything in drawing. In drawing a moving figure like the one above first get your proportions drawn out and then start drawing the actual picture. The best way to do this, for a beginner, is by the skeleton method as shown above. Note the various stages of the drawing and then try to follow them.

First the "skeleton." Then the outside lines. Connect these lines as in the third figure at the top. Now you are ready to fill in the details.

The last completed picture, the one in the center below, shows the drawing completed with shading. Do not start to shade until all details in the drawing have been completed. Now try to draw a complete drawing, using the "skeleton" in the lower right corner as your foundation. Take your time. Don't be disappointed if the first attempt is poor. Or the second. Or the third. Keep at it—and you'll succeed.

First Official Data On City Guard Unit Revealed By Report

Detailed Information To Adjutant General Made Public; Troop Highly Commended

The first official report on the condition of New Castle's unit of the National Guard since the re-organization and interest by civilian sponsors is contained in a memorandum and detailed description made by Maj. Samuel B. Wolfe to Adjutant General Beary.

The report, made public today, was received by the local officers. It had gone through state military channels. It contains names of individuals and firms of the city that have benefitted the outfit. It was compiled by Maj. Wolfe of the 103rd Cavalry following his inspection here last month.

The report follows: Captain Shelton and I made an inspection of Troop F at New Castle, and we found continued progress and loyal co-operation on the part of the reserve officers and the civilian population. There were three officers and 57 men present at the drill, which indicates that there has been no let down since camp.

The civilian and reserve officers' committee has put forth a great deal of effort and they have accomplished a lot for the good of the troop. I might cite the following:

Cites Accomplishments
Fifty-foot staff, steel, presented by the Lehigh Cement company. William E. Kleckner, superintendent. The pole was erected at the troop stables by the Pennsylvania Power company.

Drill field lights, including three 750-watt bulbs, presented by the Pennsylvania Power company. The poles, lights, etc., were erected by the Bell Telephone company.

An electric water pump has been presented and placed at the stables, by the civilian committee.

Sixty-six kits for carrying grooming equipment, presented by the civilian committee. These were used at camp.

Sixty-five foot lockers for use of men at camp, presented by Carnegie Steel company, the Shenango works, A. S. & T. P. Co.; New Castle works, A. S. & T. P. Co.

Complete set of table dishes presented by the Shenango Pottery company.

Electric washing machine for use at camp, presented by Marvin Electric company.

Slag for filling at stables, presented by Carnegie Steel.

Brick for bricking interior of stables, presented by city.

Signs for stables, painted across front of building, presented by Shenango works, A. S. & T. P. Co.

Extra mounts for parades, furnished by interested citizens and the Reick Ice Cream company.

Describes Support
Financial support given by Lawrence county.

Moral support: Reserve officers. (In fact, it is due to support given by the troop through the active co-operation of Maj. Jackson, Lieut. Welsh and L. B. Round that all of the above was made possible.)

The military committee consists of the following: Maj. W. F. Jackson, Lieut. John Kennedy, Lieut. Paul Welsh, Russell Melvine, (the first enlisted man in troop F in 1904), Capt. J. B. Brittel and Louis B. Round, the latter the author of the "Ideal Troop".

In addition to all of the above, the New Castle News gives the troop unlimited publicity in all of its activities, and through this publicity New Castle is fully aware of the existence of a National Guard unit.

The committees above named spent several days at camp this summer as guests of the troop and regiment, and they report as having had a wonderful time, making special mention of the courtesies extended and accorded them by the officers of the 103rd Cavalry. It made them feel, they said, that Troop F is a part of a real organization.

The inspection drill consisted of the following: First platoon, first period, mounted; second platoon, dismounted, changing for the second period. This is in accordance with regiment training memorandum. The drill was well conducted and the men were keenly interested.

Lauds Troop
I might conclude by saying that this report is far different from the quarterly inspection made a year ago. The equipment has been cleaned and stored away, while the clothing is now in the hands of cleaners.

Just recently Bintrun received his promotion to a captaincy, which in my judgment, is well merited. Samuel B. Wolfe.

Major, 103rd Cavalry.

P. S. The civilian committee is an active, live-wire bunch. They are always on the job endeavoring to find something that they can do to further benefit the troop. They are entitled to unlimited commendation for their loyal co-operation with Capt. Bintrun about the marked change in conditions in the troop.

The next time William Piazza goes motoring of an evening with his fiancée, he will make sure his car is locked, and locked securely.

It cost William the price of 33 feet of iron fence and a new car the last time the pair drove out.

William got out of the car to buy some cigarettes. Curious, his companion, moved levers, stepped on pedals. The running motor was slipped into gear, the car started, leaped through a fence, tore along a couple of lawns and brought up against a concrete wall.

When Piazza ran out to see what it was all about he found his car smashed, his sweetheart slumped in a faint over the steering wheel.

Bo-Broadway

by JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

By Central Press
NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Trade Recession, as Wall Street calls it, hasn't as yet been heard of in the staid Fifth Avenue Streak Cellar where they serve two smelts to a portion and soak you 70 cents apiece for each smelt.

NO SHOW FAN.
Speaking of Streak Cellars, there's a narrow gauge Nose Bag in the Theatre Belt, presided over by a counter man who proudly answers to the name of Mike.

Mike, who has been laboring in the hash houses of The Lane and its environs for the last thirty-five years is blissfully ignorant of the theatrical affairs and all persons pertaining thereto. He hasn't been inside a playhouse since Scanlon played "Mavourneen," which was about forty years ago. He's never even been to a movie and he thinks that all the theatres in New York are owned by Mishter Frohman.

"DE LAWD'S" MISTAKE.
Richard Harrison who plays "De Lawd" in "The Green Pastures" voices the belief that Marc Connelly, its author, is entitled to full credit for the success of the play. He doesn't give a look-in to Roark Bradford, whose book, "Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillum," Connelly dramatized.

"There's a deep religious spirit to the play," says Harrison "that you won't find in the Bradford book. I hate to take issue with 'De Lawd' in a matter of this kind; but I'm afraid Brother Harrison hasn't read 'Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillum' with a sympathetic and discerning eye.

GREAT PERFORMANCE.
He's an old actor—to the "manner" born. A gentleman of a generation, fast, slipping, stately, dignified and of infinite reserve. I hadn't seen him for years and then the other day I ran across him. He was entering the automat.

The Automat's all right, but there idea of this particular man eating there. He fits into the picture at Sherry's or in the dining room of some Park Ave. club, not in the plebeian jostle of nickel pushers. I followed him into the joint, in quest of "the big story." I watched him deposit two nickles in a slot and draw a plate containing three doughnuts. I watched him swap a nickel for a cup of coffee and I was nearby when, several seconds later, cautiously navigating a course toward and unoccupied table in the corner, he slipped and the doughnuts flew in one direction and the coffee splashed in another.

I could tell by the close-up I got that he hadn't been "eatin' regular" as they say on Broadway. The fifteen cents he had squandered on doughnuts and coffee, in all likelihood, represented the dregs of the exchequer.

But not for an instant did his poise desert him. He shrugged, smiled with well-bred indifference and turning, as if thoroughly bored with his environment, nonchalantly departed.

I know a hungry man when I see one. Also I recognize genius in the mummer. Fate had cast the old actor for the lead in "The Tragedy" of the Automat. Without an instant's preparation he had effected a most consummate bit of artistry—the greatest piece of acting of his career—and his audience was alone scribbled.

TELLING DAD.
Jimmy is seventeen—a concrete expression of all that's clean and fine and vibrant in modern youth. His father was recouping Tom Reed's famous definition of an honest politician—"One who stays bought."

"What would your definition of an honest politician be?" queried the young man.

"Oh, I don't know," replied the father, with the lazy tolerance that all fathers, in converse with the offspring, assume as a divine right. "I don't see how Tom Reed's characterization could be improved upon, do you?"

"Well," said the future Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, after a brief instant's cogitation, "I should say that an honest politician is one who keeps out of politics."

Score: Dad, nothing; Jimmy, one.

WHATTA NAME!

The Chinese are a wonderful people. A hard working and abstemious Chin who weekly wrings the shirt-tails of a number of the city's leading bootleggers, operates his laundry on a cash basis and has taken great pains to make his customers understand that bottled goods will not be accepted in settlement of wash bills. The "gentle yellow pirate" bears the appropriate name of No Gin.

STOP CONSTIPATION THIS PLEASANT WAY

ONCE PEOPLE thought pills and drugs were the only way to relieve constipation. But the modern, safer method is to include sufficient roughage in the diet.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, a delicious ready-to-eat cereal, gives you this bulk, and overcomes constipation naturally. Read this enthusiastic letter:

"Mine was an extreme case of constipation. I had almost given up hope of ever being relieved."

"One day I came across your advertisement, so I thought I would try ALL-BRAN. It relieved me almost immediately and I have had no trouble since, which was almost 'three months ago.' Mrs. F. E. Leslie, 2104 Lyman St., Flint, Michigan."

Delicious when served with milk or cream. Cook into tasty bran muffins, breads, omelets, etc. ALL-BRAN also adds needed iron to the diet. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. The original ALL-BRAN.

Penn. Mother Solves Problem

"MY little daughter, Marie, caused me many anxious moments," says Mrs. Michael Mobile, 339 N. Edgewood St., Philadelphia. "She was listless, didn't want to play and had very little appetite."

"She suffered a lot from constipation until I heard about California Fig Syrup and decided to give her some. Fig Syrup helped Marie remarkably. She is now strong, has no trouble with her bowels, has a good appetite and digestion; is quite the picture of health as you can see."

For over 50 years, California Fig Syrup has been helping bilious, headachy, weak, constipated babies and children. Doctors by thousands recommend this pure vegetable product. Children love its flavor. It acts gently to open the bowels in cold, or children's diseases. It cleanses a child's system harmlessly and in a hurry. Bowels become regular with its use and remain so, because they are toned and strengthened by this wonderful combination of pure fig syrup and chloroform.

Look for the name California when buying. That marks the genuine.

STABILIZE EMPLOYMENT

VOTE for

HEMPHILL FOR GOVERNOR

WAGE earners and employers agree that business conditions require a sane, conservative and constructive leadership in public office. Gifford Pinchot is a spokesman of an unsound and dangerous demagoguery. The best contribution that can be made at this time to the promotion and stabilization of employment and industry and the safeguarding of public welfare is the election of John M. Hemphill to the office of Governor of Pennsylvania.

Pinchot has proven himself a prodigious promiser. Hemphill is a conservative, sure leader who performs more than he promises.

Mrs. Urey brought the play directly before the eyes of her audience, her description was so vivid. Leaving the Oberammergau, Mrs. Urey took her hearers through Switzerland, Italy, France and other countries she had visited. Genkinger Has Had Necessary Repairs And Refinishing Touches Made Councilman Louis Genkinger superintendent of parks and buildings smiled today as he foreshadowed next summer for him will not be as strenuous as was the past summer.

He said that he had had all the municipal buildings, which includes firehouses, repaired and where necessary, refinished inside. It will not be necessary to do any work at the buildings next summer, in his opinion.

Quicksand Under Street Hampers Conduit Laying; Dig 12 Feet Deep

Workmen of the George D. Mechlin Construction Company of New Castle have tasted many ticklish jobs, but the latest, laying a telephone cable conduit under East Washington street where quicksand abounds in no little quantities proved a "nasty" job.

George D. Mechlin, the head of the construction company that contracted for the job of laying the conduit explained the particular job at first appeared simple. The telephone company found it would be necessary to lower a stretch of conduit at the intersection of Butler and Washington because of the newly constructed storm sewer that crosses Washington.

Because of the sewer, plans were made to lower the terra cotta cable conduit two feet under the sewer. To do this it was necessary to construct a new manhole. Workmen dug down 12 feet, but according to the construction head, five feet of that was in quicksand which greatly hampered the placing of planks and cable equipment.

The men worked for several weeks before the quicksand was conquered. The job will be ready this week. Eighteen were employed on the particular project.

Seniors Prowl

Whoopie was made by the Senior Girls Reserve club last evening and the senior girls certainly know how to have fun! The gymnasium of the Y. W. C. A. was a pretty decorated setting last evening, with corn stalks standing with dignity in all the corners and streamers of wild hue dangling from the gym apparatus.

Sixty members were present and a number of faculty advisors beside. Games, music and parading in fantastic Halloween outfits were the pastimes of the evening and doughnuts and cider served very good as refreshments.

Credit goes to the committees in charge and to Miss Grace Jones for the success of the affair.

Ellwood Classes

Bowling seems to be the most popular sport of the Ellwood women when they gather in the Shelby gymnasium Ellwood City every Monday afternoon and evening.

Caroline Streeter, health director of the Y. W. C. A. was in charge of both classes and after the regular drill period the women went to the bowling alleys in the basement and had such jolly times that they decided to organize bowling teams.

Condition Better

Miss Grace Lowers, Girl Reserve secretary, who is in the Jameson Memorial hospital with a fractured ankle resulting from a fall from a horse, is getting along fine but will probably be in the hospital for a number of weeks. The broken ankle has not yet been put in a cast.

Against Pinchot

Many Republicans in Pennsylvania are against Pinchot for Governor for many different reasons. Cyrus H. K. Curtis, publisher of "The Ladies Home Journal" and "The Saturday Evening Post", says, "Pinchot has always been a trouble maker; I am opposed to him". The Republican County Chairman of Pike County says, "From our observation at close range we believe him to be a political adventurer without any sincere conviction, except his fundamental hostility to the Republican Party". Committees of Republicans have been organized in many counties of the state to accomplish his defeat. He is regarded by a host of Republicans as being in sympathy with the insurgent group in the United States Senate headed by Norris, Nye, Brookhart and La Follette.

Neither he nor his chief supporter, Grundy, is rated as friendly to the National Administration. Pinchot's defeat at this time will eliminate him as a factor in state politics and in the councils of the party during the next National Convention and Presidential campaign.

Salvation Army Extending Aid

Ensign Thomsen Reports On Work Being Done In City

CO-OPERATING WITH OTHER ORGANIZATIONS

True to its policy during the World War and the Mississippi and Florida disasters, the Salvation Army national and more in particular the New Castle unit, stands ready to meet and cooperate in the present unemployment, said Ensign V. Thomsen, officer in charge, to a representative of The News today.

Letters have been sent, he stated, to the heads of various organizations in the city in which he has extended to them the cooperation and the use of the Salvation Army facilities in order that a real uplift program may be carried out.

Among those receiving the letters are the mayor, the county commissioners, poor district officers, the Associated Charities, the city mission board, the Elks, the Red Cross, the school authorities and a number of others.

Through a conference a few weeks ago with Mayor William H. Gillespie, Ensign V. Thomsen, officer in charge here, and Ensign B. Kirkman, in charge of the Salvation Army social service department in Youngstown, it was arranged that the truck which calls on the various homes should endeavor to obtain as many clothes and shoes as possible for distribution among the poor of the city.

This has been adhered to, as the record shows over 500 garments and many pairs of shoes have been given out since the conference. Furniture and stoves have also been distributed with the advent of colder weather at the office of the Salvation Army, 34 West Washington street, it was stated today by Ensign Thomsen.

"We wish we had more means to work with," said the ensign, "because the decreased budget which will be available as a result of the smaller amount which will be received during the coming year will scarcely enable the Army to accomplish as much as it could do if more funds were available, but we will do the best we can with what we have."

Many are coming to the Salvation Army seeking employment. A mother and four children came the other day almost destitute. The mother was willing to work and had worked around Mt. Jackson, but had been thrown out of work and on the mercy of the world. She was seeking her husband who had left her and was thought to be somewhere in Cleveland. Ensign Thomsen is at present working on the case and hopes to find the bread-winner of the family through the cooperation of the Salvation Army in Cleveland.

Also recently a woman with three children came on a Saturday night to the Salvation Army. She was on her way to relatives in the east having come all the way from Wyoming. She had taken care of for the night and through the aid of an interested party was sent by train to her home.

Forty-five men have been given lodging in the past two weeks and through donations made by some merchants in the form of food, not coffee and bread have been available to these men.

There is much need, according to Ensign V. Thomsen, for underwear of all kinds, also shoes and warmer clothing. A call on phone 5420 will arrange for the visit of the truck or better still, if packages of clothing and shoes could be sent or brought to 34 West Washington street, they could be put to a good use without delay.

Ensign Thomsen expressed his appreciation of the cooperation extended him in the past by the people of the city and asked their continued help in meeting the demands made on him and which are increasing each day.

Charge Graft To Police Officers

NILES, O., Oct. 28.—Mayor George O. Marshall prepared today to suspend seven members of the Niles police force on charges of graft, following signing of affidavits by nine men who allege they have been paying "protection" money for the past two and one-half years.

The action follows resignation of James L. Holloway as safety director. The police officers involved are Lieutenant Edward Kennedy, and Patrolmen Fred Henderson, P. H. Booth, Thomas "Zeese" Dominic Sharkey, Jas. Miles and Leo Meats "Jim" Jennings, alleged leader of the underworld in Niles is among those who signed the affidavits.

Stewart Sees Employment Head As Inspiring Confidence On Eve Of "Race Against Human Misery"

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Colonel Arthur Woods, President Hoover's director of employment—which he prefers to the term of unemployment—gives the impression of an unusually hard, cold, albeit high-powered executive until he starts to speak and smile, when he becomes entirely human.

The high-powered hint lingers even then.

The colonel has a tallish, spare, athletic figure, iron gray hair, blue-gray eyes, a tanned, shaven face and the look of about 50 autumns, though he has seen 60, and says he expects to take up golf when he grows too old for tennis.

"A Go Getter."

He suggests the go getter in every motion. Yet there is no hurry about him and not a sign of embarrassment in the august official society which he so suddenly and recently joined. Perhaps he considers it no more august than the J. P. Morgans, into whose family he married, or the Rockefellers, for whom he describes himself as handyman. He shows to advantage among cabinet members in short.

Nevertheless, he admits he has taken on a difficult job in his present role.

What makes his employment task especially difficult is its extreme urgency—stalling off a distressful winter for millions, with snow already flying.

Had he been summoned some months ago when unemployment already was warningly serious but the weather was warmer, giving him time to plan ahead for winter's aggravation of conditions, his race against human misery, as he expresses it, hardly would have been as strenuous as it is today.

A Real Task.

Not that the colonel complains. I made bold to ask him if his task would not have been simpler had it not been handed to him quite so late.

The earlier such situations are met the better, he agreed, but immediately qualified this statement with the explanation that the existing situation has by no means been neglected since last summer—on the contrary, it was to combine a multiplicity of activities which now need to be centralized after vast accomplishments in the right direction that his services finally were required.

Edward Eyre Hunt, secretary to the 1921 unemployment commission who was temporarily designated to fill the same post under Director Woods, was possibly a trifle more illuminating when I put my query to him.

"That is a fair question," he said, "but last summer there were prospects of a natural improvement sooner than it actually has occurred."

In other words, why provide relief that may not be needed?

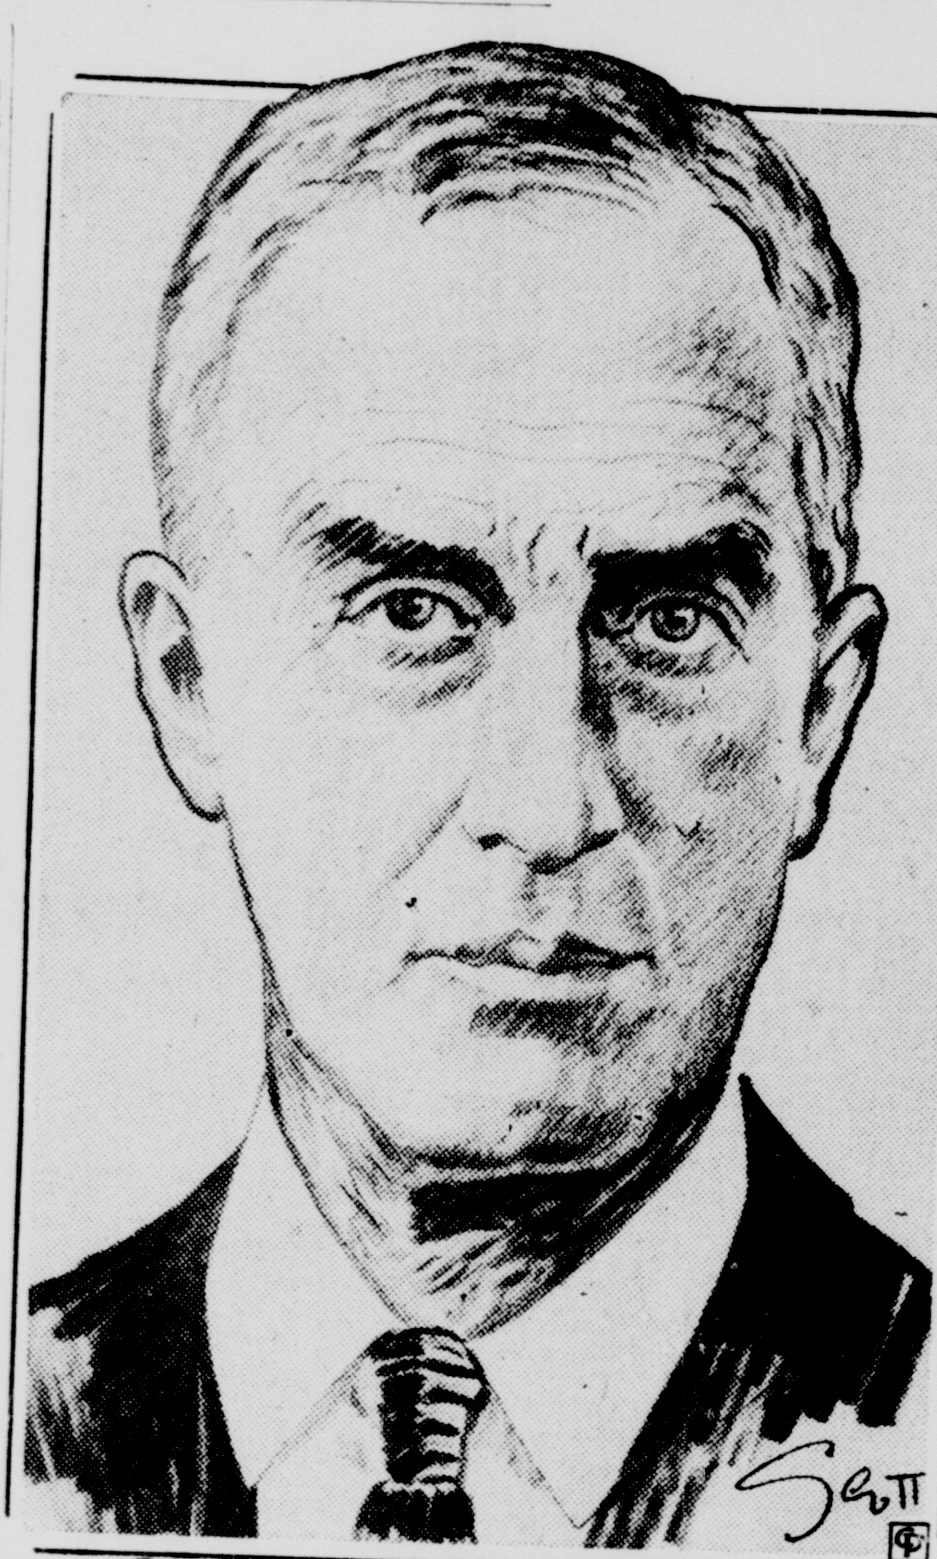

Colonel Woods accepts conditions as he finds them, anyway.

No Doles.

I was not permitted to interrogate him as to his program while he is still formulating it.

However, it is a foregone conclusion that there will be nothing in the form of doles, but every effort to coordinate and stimulate local employment campaigns—statewide, countywide, citywide, and of a private character supplemented by all possible federal improvement and construction work.

I would have liked to ask the colonel his opinion of the system of staggered employment urged by War Secretary Hurley.

Col. Arthur Woods

Five-Day Week.

President Green of the American Federation of Labor stands pat for the standard six-day rate of pay for the five-day working week he is demanding, but it appears that a series of three-day shifts for alternating sets of workers on a basis of three days' pay per shift somehow is a different proposition in principle from six days' work for six days' pay—and satisfactory.

Economics in general Colonel Woods was quite ready to discuss.

"Periodic spells of unemployment ultimately will be eliminated at the present rate," he said. "Indeed, the present one would be far worse but for the intelligent management which took the crest off the latest boom and thereby modified the severity of the ensuing slump."

Inspires Confidence.

Varied as the colonel's career has been, it almost invariably is as Manhattan's former police commissioner that he is referred to.

Can you account for it? I asked him.

"The same thing accounts for it that accounts for detective stories' popularity," he rejoined.

"There is this about the colonel—he inspires confidence. In ending economic depression, that goes a long way."

In the moving pictures, does the camera show the true height of a person or does it make a small person appear taller than they actually are?

The camera itself has no part in creating illusion of size in motion pictures. It is the proximity to the person photographed. Screen actors and actresses have been made to appear smaller than they really were by using a background of extra-sized furniture. By the same logic an actor seen against a background of undersized furniture appears large. Also a short person appearing in a cast of persons of nearly equal height appears of normal height.

Auto Death Rate In Pennsylvania Lowest In Nation

Fewer Deaths Per Population Recorded In Keystone State, Records Show

(By ARTHUR C. WIMER, Special Washington Correspondent of The New Castle News.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28.—Pennsylvania was slightly more safe than the 46 states as a whole within the commerce department registration area last year insofar as the hazards of death from automobile accidents was concerned, it would appear from a report made public by the department of commerce.

Should Change Typewriters To Prevent Frauds

Would Have Typewriter Manufacturers Change Machines To Prevent Frauds

TYPING PLAYS IMPORTANT PART

By ROBERT S. THORNBURG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Slight changes should be made by manufacturers in the type of typewriters every five years as a guard against the preparation of false documents, experts at the U. S. Bureau of Standards declared Monday.

Knowledge has come to the bureau that numerous documents have been declared fraudulent because they were written on typewriting machines that did not carry a certain style of type before a definite known date.

Should Make Change
"It would no doubt contribute to the interests of justice of the various typewriter manufacturers would make slight changes from time to time, perhaps one in five years," an official said.

"This would mark a definite date in the typewriting of that particular machine. It is understood that most typewriter manufacturers now make type of the Place system, and changes can be effected without a sacrifice of material and at small cost."

Some manufacturers, the bureau was informed, have made these changes in the process of improving machines and in some instances for the definite purpose of marking a date. It can easily be understood that a change in even one character in an inconspicuous part would accomplish the purpose, according to experts.

Kept On File
The Bureau of Standards offered to cooperate in connection with this matter in any way that is practical that will contribute to the interests of justice, an official declared.

He added:
"If, when changes are made, specimens properly authenticated are deposited with the bureau, they will be dated and put on file and made available in photographic form for future use."

"The bureau cannot undertake to enter into any litigation except in cases when the interests of the government are involved, but will simply be a custodian for certain reference material that may be supplied. The bureau will be glad to confer with any typewriter manufacturer and furnish suggestions and details regarding this matter."

Typewritten material has been found of importance in criminal as well as civil actions. In the Leopold murder of Bobby Franks in Chicago a letter written for the victim's father on a portable typewriter was later traced to a machine owned by one of the slayers.

In this case the date of the typewriter's manufacture did not play a part—it was rather the characteristics of the printing made by the machine. It is said that the peculiarities of touch of different individuals writing on the same machine may be distinguished by an expert.

PETTING PARTIES CONGEST TRAFFIC, FARMERS LAMENT

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 28.—Traffic congestion on rural roads because of petting parties was a complaint registered at a recent meeting of the Lancaster County unit of the Farmers' Protective Association here.

Members of the association reported that their roads and lanes were clogged from early evening to early morning with automobile parties from Lancaster and other urban communities.

Declaring that it was a condition needing attention in the interest of the morals of the youth of the county, the farmers decided to report on suggested action at their first meeting in November.

Irregularities Were Not Unusual In Central Pennsylvania One Hundred Years Ago

In the "good old days" when voting machines were yet unheard of charges of stuffing ballot boxes and other election irregularities were prevalent. Local vote machine advocates. In a recent address before the Berwick, Pa., Rotary Club Luzerne County Solicitor John H. Dando said that ballot stuffing was not new 100 years ago in Central Pennsylvania.

Dando, talking of the "good old days" said that in the Adams-Jefferson election in Wilkes-Barre, John Adams received 400 votes and Thomas Jefferson 100. The Jefferson committee in the state presented Allegations that stuffing the boxes had favored Adams. In the same election, a ballot box from Pittston was "downed" to prevent count.

While Luzerne County was faced at present with many prosecutions developing from irregularities in county contracts, in 1801, the speaker said, when the total expenditures of Luzerne County were only $20,000, a surcharge of 650 per cent for graft was filed against the county officials.

"This surcharge was 32½ per cent greater than the one filed in the present cases" Dando said.

HITCH-HIKERS ROB DRIVER AND ESCAPE WITH AUTOMOBILE

BUTLER, Pa., Oct. 28.—Slugged by two hitch-hikers he had picked up near Freeport last night, robbed of his overcoat, hurried from his car and left lying in a ditch while his attackers drove away toward Butler in the car.

Allen made his way back to Freeport, where he aroused Chief of Police J. M. Cunningham an hour later and spread the alarm throughout the district. State police, highway patrolmen and Butler police patrolled roads in this vicinity, but found no trace of the car or thugs. The car bears license 358Y8, state police said.

According to police reports, Allen was bound from Freeport to Butler, giving a lift to the hitch-hikers in the outskirts of Freeport. On a lonely stretch of road several miles from Freeport the men leaped on him, stopped the car, threw him to the ground and then drove on. Allen said.

Expect Crowd From District At Rivers Meet

Waterways Convention In St. Louis Vital To Progress Of Local Project

NEED ENDORSEMENT OF PARENT BODY

Leading corporations, individuals, and official representatives of the Beaver, Mahoning and Shenango valleys are being urged to attend the Mississippi Valley convention to be held in St. Louis on November 24 and 25.

The Beaver, Mahoning and Shenango Valley Association will be represented on the program by a forceful leader and it is hoped that he will have the support of several hundred of the leading men from the district.

This convention, which will be attended by hundreds of waterway supporters from 20 different states, will be asked to support the action of the Executive committee of the Mississippi Valley Association in Chicago recently when it gave the unanimous endorsement to the proposed tri-drivers improvement authorized under the 1930 Rivers and Harbors Act.

It is expected that determined opposition will be presented, both from the floor, and from within the membership of this association to the local project. The heads of the Beaver, Mahoning, and Shenango Rivers Association feel that they must demonstrate the seriousness of their purpose and interest in their own program by being present with a strong representation.

Securing the endorsement of the Mississippi Valley Association will speed up the objective of the local project, while failure to receive this will materially impede the progress of the movement, leaders believe.

Check Erasure Becomes Hopeless Task To Bogus Check Artists As Banks Here Provide Safe Checks

Prompt to see the advantages of safety check, city banks are experiencing fewer losses to their patrons. The sound check books provided to persons who have accounts are safeguards against "rubber" check artists whose old-time methods of altering amounts on checks have been practically ruled out of existence by the safety checks.

A local banker in exhibiting a new safety check which he received from a New York check printing concern declared banks here have been using the new checks for some time. The safety paper, he said, is protected on both sides against mechanical or chemical erasure.

The check artist who experiments with a knife or an eraser will be fooled, for the check color is worn off at the least attempt to detect the amount on the face. The white surface flares is quickly revealed by the pressure of an eraser.

There are some safety checks which no doubt stifle the amateur as well as the veteran check artist. The color coating comes off easily when the check is marked and the word altered flares to the surface, to the great astonishment of the alterer.

Beautifully-lithographed checks which banks provide today are designed for strength and smooth writing surface. At the same time the designers take the greatest precautions to make their checks protected against alterations.

Union High Girl Reserves Hold Pleasant Affair

Wiener Roast Is Held At Camp East Brook On Monday Evening

The first of a series of social meetings of the Union High School Girl Reserves was held Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock at Camp East Brook on the Neshannock Creek. It is but one of several seasonal events planned.

It was in the form of a wiener roast. The girls met at Union High School, where transportation was provided for the trip to the camp. After arriving at the camp, a fire was built and forty girl reserves and special guests gathered around it and a most enjoyable evening followed.

After partaking of the menu planned, games and dancing were the diversion enjoyed by all. One of the special features was a spook dance led by Miss Margaret Tucker, advisor of the group of reserves, the course of which led through the woods and the vacated buildings. On the journey several weird noises were heard, which provided many exciting moments and made all who took part in the dance glad to return to camp.

Special music was provided by Berta Horchler. After the social hour, a business meeting was held in which general discussion took place.

Special guests of the occasion were Mrs. W. C. McGrew, Mrs. J. E. Davis, Mrs. R. F. Conway, Mrs. J. W. Patterson, Mrs. Bacon, Mrs. William Tucker, and Mrs. H. W. Son-tum.

Celebrate Store's 25th Anniversary At Workers' Fete

Hosts Share In Last Night's Masquerade Affair Of Dry Goods Firm

Marking the near completion of a quarter-century of successful business operation, members of the New Castle Dry Goods company force, together with their families, gathered last night for a general store frolic and Halloween masquerade party at Danceland. Over a hundred persons took part in the affair.

Annually, the store personnel assembles for a Halloween party, but never have those held previously carried so much significance as this one. The store here was founded in November, 1915. Capable committees handled arrangements for the anniversary fete, and performed their duties well. Opening the evening was a short period of dancing, following which there was singing, stunts and musical entertainment put on by employees of the store. Dancing also followed.

Featuring was the costume judging contest, in which practically all of the mummies took part. Prizes were awarded the following: For the best costume, Miss Mildred Mottinger; the best couple, Clifford Barr and S. A. Thompson, and the funniest costume, Miss Jennie Basile. Decorations for the occasion were elaborate, prepared under Chairman Frank Perry's committee. Assisting him were S. A. Thompson, Russell Garbett, Mrs. Bertha Miller and Mrs. Anna Waddington.

At a late hour, following the impromptu program refreshments were served by Mrs. Carrie Gilbert, Miss Nell Ingram, Mrs. Sara Tunstall, Miss Beryl Thomas, Mrs. Prudence Harris and Miss Edna McClaren. The evening's entertainment was planned by Jack Huston, Mrs. Millie Welton, Miss Dorothy Prengner, Walter Kerr and William Wallace.

Strong Defense By Mergerists

Legality Of Votes Cast For Merger Strongly Defended In Court Today

EATON INTERESTS SEVERELY SCORED

(International News Service)

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 28.—Defending the legality of the votes cast in favor of the merger of Bethlehem Steel corporation with Youngstown Sheet & Tube company, and waging a bitter attack on the persons who were responsible for the injunction suit which is being tried in Common Pleas court here to prevent the consolidation, the defense continued its battle here today to show that the merger contract was legally perpetrated.

Charge with adopting an attitude of "unalterable opposition," Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland capitalist, and his associates, drew the fire of Frederick H. Wood of Chicago, in his closing argument for the pro-merger group. The Eaton interests, Wood declared, would have "distorted the information on which the merger was based," if it had been turned over to them. He charged that the opposition committee, composed of Eaton and his associates, made an effort to secure the figures used in the merger negotiations only for the purpose of misrepresenting them to the stockholders in the hope of defeating the deal.

Wood maintained that the opposition group was not entitled to the figures and that it was the duty of the officials to withhold the information "because of the conduct of the opposing committee in the proxy campaign."

The attorney told Judge David G. Jenius, who is hearing the case that two members of the opposition committee were stockholders in Sheet & Tube only because shares were transferred to them by Otis & Company, in which Eaton is a partner. He named the two members as Philip Schaff and W. H. Foster.

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 28.—Plans are completed for one of the largest Halloween celebrations ever enjoyed in Ellwood City, it was announced today.

It is expected that several bands will compete for the handsome prize offered for the best, as well as the best Mother Goose, clowns, Topsy and a number of other characters that stand a chance of attracting the roving eyes of the judges.

A good sized congregation witnessed a most beautiful and impressive celebration of the Lord's Supper. After the ritual service was recited the lights in the auditorium were turned off and the soft light of an electric cross from the rostrum above flooded the chancel. The pastor read "O love divine, what hast thou done?" A quartet sang "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," after which the communicants came quietly to the accompaniment of the soft strains of the "Eucharist" and partook of the holy sacrament. After the last communicant had retired from the table, Mrs. Inez M. Fenton emerged from the shadows dressed in white, reading "In the cross of Christ I glory." Then followed the Lord's Prayer in unison and the benediction. Many said it was the most beautiful and impressive service they had ever witnessed.

Claims Agreement Has Been Violated

Marital Troubles Of Mr. And Mrs. Lorenzo D. Miller Aired In Court

Hearing was held before Judge R. Lawrence Hildebrand in court this morning in the case of Mary Belle Miller against Lorenzo D. Miller. This is a case in which the couple separated several years ago and drew up articles of separation under which Miller was to pay his wife $25 per month. It is claimed that these payments are in arrears and a charge of non-support was made by Mrs. Miller. It is claimed by Miller that in view of the agreement Mrs. Miller's only recourse is a civil action to recover on the agreement and that she cannot be arrested on a non-support charge. Attorney for Mrs. Miller takes a different view of the case, claiming the right to proceed on a non-support charge. After hearing some testimony and arguments Judge Hildebrand took the papers in the case and will hand down a decision later.

New Trial Asked By John Tillia

Claims That Verdict Obtained Against Him By J. A. Rocco Against Evidence

Application for a new trial and for judgment notwithstanding the verdict was filed in court this morning by the defendant in the case of Joseph A. Rocco against John W. Tillia. The case is one growing out of an automobile accident on the New Castle-Ellwood road.

At a trial of the case last week Rocco was awarded a verdict of $460.85 against Tillia. In the application for a new trial it is claimed that the verdict was against the weight of the evidence.

Rocco and another man were getting a car out of the ditch with a wrecker when Tillia crashed into the car. Rocco was squeezed between the car and the wrecker and severely injured.

It was claimed by Rocco that the accident was due to the reckless driving of Tillia, which Tillia denied. Judge Hildebrand directed that the notes of testimony be written out, when arguments on the motion will be heard.

REFPLEVIN WRIT The Universal Credit Company has filed a writ of replevin at the prothonotary's office against William Shaughnessy to secure possession of an automobile, the value of which is given at $500.

New York Jewel Robbers Obtain $200,000 In Loot

Jewelry Store On Great White Way Robbed Of Valuable Loot Today

(International News Service) NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—A $200,000 jewel robbery on Broadway in the white light district was reported to police today.

Two bandits, one posing as a telegraph messenger to gain admittance, looted the safe of M. Rosenblatt and Sons in a shop near Fifth street.

Charles F. Lewis, porter, told police the bandits pressed guns against his back and forced him to telephone his employer and obtain the combination to the safe.

Lewis said he opened the store today when a telegraph messenger gained entrance and said, "There's an important message for your boss." Then the messenger poked a gun against him, according to Lewis, and said: "My pal will be here in a minute. Don't move."

A second man appeared and both bandits ordered him to open the safe.

Ex-Service Men Plan Armistice Day Banquet Here

Annual Event Will Be Held In Elks Club And Is Open To All Veterans

Arrangements are now going forward for the annual Armistice Day banquet for ex-service men, which has been an event of the past few years, and will take place at 6:30 o'clock on Tuesday, November 11 in the Elks Club.

The idea originated with several local World War veterans, shortly after their return here, and has been carried out from year to year with increasing enjoyment to those who have participated.

Those attending elect a master-of-ceremonies after they arrive at the banquet hall, and an informal program of anecdotes, stories, etc., pertaining to their service, most of their true and original occupies the evening.

Reservations for the banquet this year can be made with John Kennedy or W. Russell Allen, and must be accompanied by cash in advance.

Husband Ordered To Pay Allowance

Peter Panella Directed To Pay Wife $7 Per Week Pending Divorce

Hearing on a petition to fix alimony pending the disposition of a divorce petition was held before Judge R. Lawrence Hildebrand this morning in the case of Peter Panella against Carolina Panella. Mr. Panella applied for a divorce on the grounds of desertion. To this Mrs. Panella filed an answer denying the charge and claiming that she was forced to leave on account of the cruelty of her husband, which endangered her life. She asks that the divorce be denied. The couple have two children. Judge Hildebrand made an order directing that Panella pay his wife $7 per week pending a final disposition of the case.

Socialist Candidate Determined To Speak

James H. Maurer, Reading Socialist Candidate For Governor Aroused

Will Make New Effort To Deliver Address In Pittsburgh

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—James H. Maurer, of Reading, Socialist candidate for governor, today indicated that he would attempt to stage another mass meeting in front of the City-County Building where police yesterday arrested him and two followers as they began to address their audience.

This action was decided upon last night at a meeting of the executive committee of the socialist party when the group planned to stage a second meeting provided Maurer and his companions are not fined on charges of violating a city ordinance by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg this morning.

Should times be levied on the three men, Maurer, Arthur G. McDowell, party organizer, and Louise Weisbart, "the executive committee decided to take an immediate appeal.

Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh had refused a permit to use the meeting yesterday. His reason that a permit was refused because traffic would be congested was called "a palpable absurdity" by Dr. William J. Van Essen, Socialist candidate for United States Senator, who was present at last night's meeting.

Maurer's comment after being given a ride in the patrol wagon after his arrest was:

"It is not only obvious, but well established now, that the administration of Pittsburgh will not only permit, but will and did promote the use of public facilities that the people could again hear Gifford Pinchot's extravagant pro-ices, at the same time denying working people a noon-hour chance to hear what their friend Jim Maurer, had to say.

Favors Progressive Traffic Plan Here

Traffic Engineer Says It Could Be Installed For About $2,000

C. K. Koontz of the C. H. Arnold Company, Pittsburgh today paid an impromptu call at city hall and while there told some of the municipal officials that a progressive traffic system could be arranged for this city at approximately a cost of $2,000.

The traffic engineer stated he had arranged for the four-way traffic system at Croton Avenue and said that in his opinion it is working good.

"To have progressive system throughout Washington street all it would need would be to run a cable from East street to Croton avenue."

Koontz said the cost would be approximately $2,000 for everything.

"I believe that the progressive system here would benefit traffic 50 per cent," he stated.

Reider May Get Starting Berth On Panther Team

New Castle Boy Looks Good Against Notre Dame And Catches Coaches Eye

PITT TEAM MAY UNDERGO SHAKEUP

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—Several changes in the lineup of the Pitt Panthers likely will be made this week. The fact that the starting backs could make no headway against Notre Dame Saturday and a revamped backfield scored three touchdowns in jig time has caused Coach Jock Sutherland to open the lists this week and announce that every man has a chance to land a job.

Little Jimmy Clark, injured through the early weeks of the campaign, finally got going against the Rockne team and may be Pitt's starting fullback henceforth.

Reider May Start
Bulldog Reider, another lightweight back, also showed ground gaining ability where the starting halfbacks failed.

Clark weighs 160 pounds and Reider weighs a little more than 155 pounds. Yet these men were the ground gainers.

Pitt's cripples have recovered one by one and against Nebraska Saturday, Sutherland should be able to have his full strength for the first time this year.

The program for the week provides for only three practice sessions on the home field. The Panthers will be in Chicago Thursday and work out at Stagg field and on Friday will have a light workout in Omaha, using Creighton's gridiron. The team moves into Lincoln Saturday morning.

Despite Pitt's defeat Saturday a special train load of the team's followers will go to Lincoln for this week's game.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Reports from the East state today that the motion pictures of the seven-sevens between Army and Yale Saturday at New Haven have convinced Yale officials that the touchdown Kellar made for the Army was not strictly in accordance with the rules. The officials, however, have declared they would accept the official decision ruling it a touchdown.

The pictures it is reported showed the violation of Rule 10, Section 1, Article 1, which sets forth what aid a player may and may not receive while running with the ball. With fourth down and one yard to go for a touchdown Kellar was given the ball and hurried himself against the Yale line. The pictures show he was thrown back before he reached the double stripe.

As Kellar fell back, according to the pictures as reported from the East, Stecher charged in, hit him squarely in the back and lifted him over the goal line for the touchdown which put the Cadets on even terms with Yale. The rule provides "no player of the team in possession of the ball may help the runner except by interfering for him and there shall be no interlocked interference."

A supplementary note says that "pushing the runner or lifting the runner from the ground by a teammate is an infraction of the rule" which carries as a penalty a loss of 15 yards. The Yale Athletic association, however, states that there will be no protest over the alleged illegal touchdown made by the Army and that the decision of the football officials is accepted.

The knockout last night of George Panka by Emmett Rocco makes him a bigger drawing card than ever in Pittsburgh and with smart handling Rocco should be able to capture a lot of the mazzuma that he has lost through injuries to his hand. He has come through in his last two bouts and is standing forth now as Pittsburgh's best drawing card.

According to Knute Rockne, the Notre Dame shift is what draws the crowds which packs the stadiums and should the rulemakers ever ban the shift it will not prevent Notre Dame from winning but it may take away some of the lustre of the game which would naturally result in a lesser number of fans journeying to the stadiums.

Knute says that the shift could be eliminated and his team could pass and play from a punt formation for one thing or he could use big fellows and better Notre Dame's way through but he doesn't choose to do either. He says there is nothing unsportsmanlike about the shift and it merely gives little men of ability and speed a chance to handle big men.

Frank Bruen has voluntarily resigned as manager and vice president of the Madison Square Garden corporation at New York city it was announced today. He held the post that was formerly occupied by the late Tex Rickard. William Carey, president has stated that no effort has been made as yet to find a successor to Bruen. Carey will act as manager until one is secured.

Fredericks Team To Play Harrisville Saturday At Bessemer

SLIPPERY ROCK TO FOLLOW HARRISVILLE

Coach Fredericks of Bessemer sent his football proteges through a strenuous workout last evening and will drive the team like trojans during the next few days in anticipation of one of the hardest games of the season Saturday when Harrisville journeys to Bessemer.

Bessemer has chalked up victories over Lowellville, New Wilmington, Scienceville and Shenango but Harrisville has a strong team, an aggregation that defeated New Wilmington 35 to 0, while Bessemer won by a smaller score.

The Harrisville-Bessemer clash is not the only stiff battle on Bessemer's card as one week from Saturday the Fredericksmen will clash with Slippery Rock, another husky outfit and one which rates as good or better than Harrisville.

Following the clashes with Harrisville and Slippery Rock, Bessemer will play Union high.

Youngsters Roll Fine Tenpin Game

Two young boys Jack Lowery, aged 74, and James "Jim" Motgam, age 66, decided to test their ability in the topling of the big maple tenpins at the Seventh Ward alleys. It was just a friendly match between the boys of declining years, and Lowery won the match by rolling 185, 161, against 145 and 138 for Motgam. There was considerable jousting by the fans who saw the match, but the boys went about their work and really did better than a lot of the youngsters around 50 can do.

Emmett Rocco "Kayoes" Panka

Puts Homestead Slav Away In Sixth Of 10 Round Battle

EDDIE BRANNON WINS FROM JIMMY REED

Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City, knocked out George Panka, Homestead, in the sixth of a ten-round heavyweight fight last night at Moeller Square garden, Pittsburgh. Rocco put Panka away with a blow to the jaw following lefts and rights to the midriff. It was a good fight and both were on the floor in rounds which preceded the knockout.

Rocco put Panka down for a count of one in the first round and Panka floored Rocco in the fourth for a count of two.

Emmett captured the first three rounds. In the third it looked as though the Italian would put the Slav out as Panka was groggy on the ropes.

Panka came back in the fourth and smacked Emmett for a knockdown and he also took the fifth.

Rocco lands "Kayoes" The Slav was going good in the sixth until Rocco started on Panka's midriff and catching him on the ropes put a blow to the jaw that sent Panka to the floor.

He laid on his face while Referee Al Grayber counted off ten seconds. As he counted ten Panka was struggling to his feet.

It was the first knockout over Panka and the second victory for Rocco in Pittsburgh as he recently outpointed Tom Henney in 10 rounds.

Eddie Brannon won a technical knockout over Jimmy Reed in the sixth and Johnny Kusie outboxed Jackie Murray in six rounds.

Paul Riesko took a three-round verdict from Len Johnson, Eddie Kennedy and Al Grayber alternated as referees.

"THREE-LEGGED" MAULBETSCH THEY CALLED HIM, BECAUSE OF HIS QUEER STYLE OF RUNNING

JOHNNY MAULBETSCH
ALL-AMERICAN HALFBACK IN 1914, WHO IS NOW COACHING MARSHALL

BY JACK SORDS
Central Press Sports Cartoonist

"Three-legged" Maulbetsch they called him—and with reason. Clutching the precious pigskin oval in one arm Johnny Maulbetsch used to sweep down the gridiron, running with his head low and his free hand almost touching the turf. And "Three-Legged" he seemed to be because his speed was too great a test for the two legs of most of his opponents.

That free arm swinging low, could come up like a flash and straight-arm a would-be tackler into stunned impotence. At Harvard they remember that arm, that peculiar crouched run, that sprinting figure which was Johnny Maulbetsch for in the Maize and Blue of Michigan Maulbetsch tore Crimson hopes into shreds.

The late Walter Camp needed but one look at Johnny Maulbetsch and the Wolverines name decorated the 1914 All-American team as a halfback.

Maulbetsch today is coach at Marshall college in Huntington, W. Va., a school not in the football "big leagues" but good enough from time to time to appear on the schedules of some of the "big boys."

Gridiron Gossip

Westminster College football team fresh from their 29 to 0 victory over Slippery Rock Teachers College team, will start today preparing for the game this week end that takes them to Huntingdon, Pa., to battle the first Juniata College team. The Titans are hopeful of making it two straight next Saturday.

The new backfield shift that put Ketterer in the left-half spot looked very good last week. Shafter continues to look very good at quarterback for the United Presbyterians.

Bethany with only a mediocre team will try it again Saturday this time tackling Waynesburg at Waynesburg. The Bethany Bisons have little to shout about this year, they have not won a game yet, but are hopeful of doing a little better this week against the Yellow Jackets. Coach Knight is almost beside himself to figure out a winning combination. This is the most disastrous year the Bisons have ever had on the gridiron.

Thiel and W. & J. will fight it out here in New Castle this week. The college boys have been granted the right to utilize Taggart Field. The Presidents fresh from their victory over Lafayette last Saturday night will be the favorites to defeat Thiel, but the powerful Lutheran eleven will test the Washington & Jefferson team, is the opinion here. Tech found Thiel tough, so did Temple, and Allegheny. Thiel licked St. Vincents last Friday night at Johnstown.

There is a Tri-State district battle scheduled for Meadville this week that has all the earmarks of a first-class contest and we are speaking about that Grove City-Allegheny fust. The Alleghenians have been undefeated in the first four games this year and are out to take the measure of the highly touted Grover outfit, but this may be a tough job, especially after what Geneva did to Grove City. College Teams Start Preparing For Grid Game At Taggart Field In This City

Thiel and Wash & Jeff will battle at Taggart Field on Saturday afternoon of this week. The college teams secured the permission of the School Board and Athletic council to use the local field for their grid contest.

The Thiel boys are all rarin' to go now that they have won a game, and it was St. Vincents, that fell to the Lutherans last Friday night 20 to 0. It was the initial victory of the year for the Rawley coached team. Practice has started in earnest for the W. & J. game here.

The Presidents following their 7 to 0 victory over Lafayette College at Atlantic City, in a night-indoor game Saturday, are holding severe drills this week, because Thiel, even if Class B rated, will give the W. & J. boys a stiff battle. Coach Ames will have his regulars in the starting lineup here.

Monday Is Rest Day For Gridders At High

Monday was a rest day for the New Castle High School football team, following its game with Washington High on Saturday afternoon. In Room 17, at high school, the entire New Castle squad held a meeting.

The meeting was held for the purpose of talking over the mistakes made on Saturday. This afternoon at Taggart Field the local grid machine will start training for Friday night when New Castle plays Rochester at Taggart Field.

The local high team came through in fine condition following that hard game with Washington. Mike DeCarbo who was injured at the start of the contest was a little bruised up but today appears improved. Robert Hoose who injured his lip is also improving. The remainder of the squad appears to be in good shape.

Yale-Dartmouth Battle Features Saturday's Card

Undeclared Dartmouth Team Faces Big Test In Meeting With Yale

NOTRE DAME TO PLAY INDIANA

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Of some half dozen undefeated teams to date, which because of the strength of their schedules are entitled to claims for the nation's football title, Dartmouth faces the stiffest test this week.

The Big Green machine, which in five games has rolled up 232 points, engages Yale at New Haven and with or without Albee Booth the boys from Hanover are facing a feverish afternoon.

Notre Dame has somewhat of a breather in Indiana, Kansas should win from Penn without trouble. Washington State is favored over Oregon State and Northwestern is a natural choice over Minnesota, although the sophomores have a habit of upsetting brilliant opponents.

In the south, Georgia, undefeated and winner over Yale, plays Florida and Alabama and Kentucky, both with clean records, will do some eliminating at Lexington.

North Dakota—Army
North Dakota, winner of six games this season and with a total of 147 points, is likely to join the list of fallen giants as the Westerners oppose the tower strength Major Ralph Sasse has built in the Army cohorts at West Point.

Fordham the only team in the country which has kept all opponents scoreless, plays West Virginia in New York City. Unfortunately Fordham is like a large number of the 25 undefeated teams of the country today in having a schedule that many class as weak when compared with those of Notre Dame and Yale, for instance.

Some idea of Fordham's power will be furnished in the medium of comparative scores through the New York University—Carnegie Tech game at Pittsburgh. Notre Dame, acknowledged by almost everyone as the country's outstanding eleven at this writing, defeated Tech 21 to 6 and Fordham won 7 to 0 over New York University.

Cornell—Columbia
Gil Dobie's undefeated Cornell eleven has a pushover in Columbia, which folded up like an accordion gasping a tune of 52 to 0 against Dartmouth.

Yale bowl and the Bulldog have always been a jinx to the green and the brilliant game played by the blue against Army last Saturday in the face of the depressing clout dealt with the elimination of Booth, the Eli ace field general, indicates Yale's victories are likely to be continued over the Hanoverites.

Yale has been coming along like a frightened deer since upset at the start of the season by Georgia and against Dartmouth will offer the full stride of power. Booth proved a mighty faction when Yale defeated Brown 21 to 0, and if the little star recovers from injuries received in his sole play in the Army tilt and directs the Elis against Dartmouth, the New Haven team should rate at least one touchdown better than the green.

Jewel Ens

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—Jewel Ens will lead the Pittsburgh Pirates in the 1931 race.

This was assured today when Ens signed a contract for next season. Terms of the contract were not divulged. Barney Dreyfuss expressed the utmost confidence in Ens after the ceremony.

Ens, a native of St. Louis, assumed the management of the local National League Club in 1929 after Donnie Bush had given up the post.

ASKS NAME CHANGE

Emanuele Fazzone presented a petition to court today asking that his name be changed to Mike Fazzone. Petitioner alleges that for the past 25 years he has been called Mike Fazzone by his friends. In view of this fact he would prefer to be known officially as Mike Fazzone. Judge Hildebrand fixed January 3rd as a date for hearing the petition.

"How many are there in your family, madam?"
"Just my husband and I."
"No child?"
"No."
"Any dogs or cats?"
"No."
"Do you have wireless?"
"No."

"Now have you any saxophones, pianolas, ukuleles or other musical instruments?"
"Indeed not. And why all these questions?"

Yesterday council approved Councilman Genkinger's plan to have the three machines provided with windshields which break the wind and side cars which prevent them from skidding.

The motorcycles will probably be used during the winter, not only for automobile law violations but also for scout duty. The motorcycles, with sidecars, will be able to carry six men.

Hoover Scores Ralph Kelley

Man Who Filed Charges Against Interior Department Severely
Scored

NEWSPAPER IS ALSO ASSAILED

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—President Hoover today took cognizance of the charges made by Ralph S. Kelley, suspended chief of the Denver land office of the interior department, to the effect Secretary Wilbur and other officials of the department had been guilty of maladministration of titles to oilshale lands in Colorado amounting to billions of dollars.

Mr. Hoover branded all of Kelley's charges as baseless and without merit, and declared he was merely attempting to "start odious oil scandals to his administration" at the time a national election was imminent. He likewise paid his respects to the newspapers which bought and syndicated Kelley's story asserting that as a piece of journalism "it certainly does not represent the practice of better American journalism."

"As a piece of politics," he continued, "it is certainly far below the ideals of political partisanship held by substantial men in the Democratic party."

Americanism—Fisking the people in order to amass millions; donating millions in an effort to relieve the curse of poverty.

At that, the number of good workmen without jobs doesn't exceed the number of jobs without good workmen.

Hallowe'en Party To Be Held By "Y" Midgits Tuesday

Theater Party Will Follow Costume Parade In Gym; 150
Expected To Attend

One hundred and fifty joyous youngsters, members of the Y. M. C. A. boy department's midgits class, and their friends will celebrate Hallowe'en with the usual masquerade and theater party Wednesday evening.

A committee of judges comprised of R. L. Meermans, general secretary; W. A. Thomas, boys' work director, and Henry McNichols, physical director, will judge the costume contest, one of the features of the annual affair, and bestow candy prizes to the young winners.

The event will start at 6:30 o'clock when scores of midgits will assemble in costume in the boys' department. A parade will be held to the gymnasium, where prizes will be awarded. Mass games will be played in the department before the party is begun.

The boys will then proceed to the Regent theater as the guests of James Newman, the manager.

The midgits are boys whose ages range from 10 to 12 years. The work of the "Y" with this class holds great interest to Boys' Work Director Thomas, who directs their activities in the institution.

Librarian Is Back In City

Miss Alice Sterling Of Local Library Attends State Library Meeting

Miss Alice Sterling, librarian of the New Castle free public library, has returned to this city after spending the past week at Wernersville, Pennsylvania, where she attended the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Library Association.

Some interesting points of the meeting were the report of Dr. Fred Goddard, state librarian, who was a delegate to the American Library Association meeting in Los Angeles in June, and the address by Stewart Chase, economist and author, Rose, Fyelman, English poet, and Dr. Donald Cadzow, archeologist. Dr. Cadzow gave an intensely interesting account of the Indian remains on the Susquehanna.

There were exhibits of publishers' books, book binders and supply houses. Delightful entertainment was offered.

Start Probe Of Airship Crash

Miniature Model Of Late R-101 Will Be Used In Probing Cause For Crash

FORTY-EIGHT PERSONS KILLED

(International News Service)
LONDON, Oct. 28.—With a beautifully executed model of the airship R-101 suspended before their eyes as a poignant reminder of one of history's greatest air tragedies, a solemn committee of inquiry assembled at the Institute of Engineers here today to investigate the causes of the dirigible's tragic crash on a hillside near Beauvais, France.

The model, especially designed for the Antwerp exposition, was hastily requested for the purposes of the inquiry. It was hung on wires from the rafters of the great hall of the institute building, where the committee gathered under the chairmanship of Sir John Simon to begin their investigation into the tragedy which cost 48 lives.

Appointment of Sir John Simon, one of Britain's most brilliant legal minds, as chairman of the inquiry indicates that the British government will not tolerate a "white-wash" verdict. French officials undoubtedly will testify, as well as British aeronautical experts and Dr. Hugo Eckener, famed commander of the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, who volunteered to render any technical airship data required.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

There is one place in any city or in any ward where you can get the problems of the day settled promptly and that place is a fire station. Makes no difference how intricate the problem, or how broad a territory it covers, the gang around the fire station will settle it in on sitting.

Dropped around the Seventh ward fire station late Monday afternoon, and the boys had several problems on the griddle. Turned them out in a short time too, settled. Traffic, the weather, revolutions now going on, these and a few minor difficulties.

The one solution offered for traffic problems in the downtown section sounded logical enough at that. One of the gang suggested that Washington street be made a clear street between the bridges, allowing no parking there during busy hours. The idea being that every customer would have a chance to unload in front of the store to which he was going, without having to get eight blocks away to get a place to unload his passengers without difficulty.

Not such a bad idea when you think it over. Most cities have their main traffic arteries open in the rush hours, and no parking is allowed. The idea is worth mulling over, but credit for it should go to the Seventh ward fire station.

Over at the Legion Home tonight the Legionnaires are going to revel in a couple of miles of spaghetti, and the feed is on the immediate past post commander, Dr. H. H. Rosenthal. One of the leading spaghetti authorities of the present day will prepare the glutenous delicacy, and Commander Guy J. Wadlinger will offer a prize to the most dexterous spaghetti winder present.

It's an art, nothing else, to be able to stick a fork into a junior mountain of spaghetti and come out with it rolled around the fork without getting a roll too large for your mouth. Only diligence and long practice can accomplish much in the way of results. The prize is being kept secret but it is worth winning.

At the present time the Legion membership drive is on with D. Glenn Berry in charge. To the men who served in the world war the American Legion offers a common meeting ground, a place where veterans understand the language spoken, a reminder of the days when khaki was the color the well dressed man was wearing, and a rifle was considered the proper jewelry.

Time eats up the years in a hurry. It's just twelve years since the Armistice, and yet around the Legion Home it might have been just a year ago. St. Mihiel and Mt. Blainville are still heard of, slumgullion retains its place in the vocabulary, and a corporal is still as popular as ever.

Hallowe'en is a double celebration in New Castle for the past few years. The downtown section has its little fling and the South Side has its play time also. Thursday night the Slabtowners step out in masks and frizzy, and if you have time come down and see the fun. The downtown celebration takes place on Friday evening.

The news from Pittsburgh is that Paul Reider has made the grade, and will likely be made a regular half back on the Pitt team. This will undoubtedly surprise some of the football experts in the Smoky City, but isn't at all surprising to us here.

He was thought to be a bit slow, and a bit light for the Pitt regulars, back in the training camp. Against Notre Dame last Saturday he stood out like a headlight and now looks to be good for a regular place.

Pinchot Will Carry Western End Of State Survey Seems To Show

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 28.—Gifford Pinchot, who expects to be the next Republican governor of Pennsylvania, will carry the extreme western tier of counties, bordering on Ohio, and come eastward out of Pittsburgh next November with a decided plurality over his Democratic foe, John M. Hemphill, an independent survey indicated today.

Both Pinchot and Hemphill view this city, Allegheny and the adjoining counties as a real battle-ground, his departure for the east to make an additional series of speeches while Hemphill was enroute to address a huge Democratic and Liberal rally tonight the latter hoped to cut down the anticipated pluralities for his opponent by a whirlwind tour of the western end of the state.

Predict Plurality

There was no question apparently of Pinchot winning a plurality in the Ohio borderline counties, which range from Lake Erie to West Virginia. The only dispute involved the totals of his anticipated pluralities. Where Pinchot leaders claimed he would leave Pittsburgh and Allegheny county with a plurality of from 85,000 to 135,000, the Hemphill spokesmen insisted it would range only from 5,000 to 20,000. If either of the Hemphill predictions is correct, Pinchot would face an almost impossible task to overcome the expected vote against him in Philadelphia.

In this belt, consisting of Erie, Crawford, Mercer, Lawrence, Beaver, Washington and Green counties—in addition to Allegheny—the Pinchot leaders claimed victory in all except Erie. The Hemphill directors claimed Erie naturally but insisted that Green county too would be found in the Democratic-Liberal column.

Pinchot should come out of these seven counties ahead of his opponent, because all save Erie and Greene are looked upon as his strongholds in this campaign. In 1922, while he lost Crawford and Greene, he came out of the sector 35,834 votes ahead of his opponent. He must do better this November if he hopes to overcome the huge Hemphill vote in Philadelphia.

Expect Many Floats For Armistice Parade

Enthusiasm is being manifested on every side in the floats that are to be placed in the Armistice Day parade through the Woman's club committee in charge of this feature of the celebration, as well as the window displays.

Mrs. William Cosel announced today that the Retail Grocers Association and Handy Service Stores are co-operating to the fullest extent, especially in the floats for the parade.

The merchants will have their stores closed all day during the celebration, Tuesday, November 11. They have also agreed to have at least fifteen trucks or floats appropriately decorated in the parade. They have asked that their division be headed by a band.

All merchants are requested to have their entries in both the window display and float events in the hands of Mrs. William Cosel, chairman of the Woman's club committee, as soon as possible. The final date for such entries is November 8th.
